See world shortage of wheat

LONDON (AP) — The world will not have enough wheat despite this year's record production, experts predict.

They cited several factors Thursday which they said are behind the shortage.

First, the standard of living has increased all over the world and people are eating more bread. Countries in the Far East, which once depended on rice as a staple, have slowly been switching to bread.

Second, the partial ban on U.S. soybean exports has forced breeders of cattle and poultry in other parts of the world to feed their stock with soft wheats and other grain.

Third, a shortage of fishmeal, which is used as an animal feed, is causing more of the same kind of problems. Peru used to provide most of the world's supply from an anchovy catch of 10 million tons a year. Anchovies thrive in cold water and when the cold Humboldt Current switched, as it does every 25 years, it took the anchovy shoals along with it.

The International Wheat Council estimates that world wheat production will total 321 million tons in the current crop year, with world stocks standing at about 27 million tons. This is 1 million tons lower than at the end of June and down from 47½ million tons at the end of June 1972.

Statisticians say world wheat consumption is rising at about 2½ per cent yearly, and droughts in India and Africa are adding to the world shortage. This coupled with world crop failures is sending wheat prices to record levels.

Prices have soared about $20 a ton in Britain in the last month, and deliveries for March 1974 were quoted Wednesday at about $165 a ton. But prices eased Thursday, and March futures closed $1.25 below Wednesday's price.

Wheat futures zoom again at Kansas City

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Wheat farmers and grain experts cocked a sharp eye on the Kansas City Board of Trade today.

September wheat closed Thursday at $4.10 a bushel, the maximum under the 10-cent limit on rise or decline in one day. The limit increased today to 25 cents per bushel.

"This is something no farmer now living has ever seen," said Rod Turnbull, director of public affairs for the Kansas City Board of Trade. "There never before has been such a demand for wheat."

Turnbull said there just wasn't any way to determine what might happen today under the increased trading limit. He said the increase in the limit is a device to stimulate trade, but it doesn't mean sellers would let their wheat go. He said there might be some reduction in the spread between wheat futures and cash wheat. Cash wheat closed Thursday at $4.41 a bushel.

Thursday marked the ninth straight day of bidding at the limit. The ceiling for September futures will be $4.35 today.

Creel Brock, administrator of the Kansas Wheat Commission, said, "The farmers may continue to hold off selling as the price continues to go up. They want all the profit for their product they can get."

Ray Davis of Potter, Neb., president of the National Wheat Growers Association, said he didn't think growers are holding back wheat in hope of further price increase, but he suggested that a box car shortage is part of the problem. He said a lot of wheat that has been sold has not been moved.

Youth admits role in gruesome death ring

21 murder victims found in Texas

HOUSTON (AP) — Police following leads supplied by a youth who says 27 young men were victims of a homosexual procurement ring dug up two more bodies today, raising the total found so far to 21.

The two new graves were unearthed near Broadus in San Augustine County about 130 miles northeast of Houston. Two graves were found in the same area late Thursday. Police said all were pointed out to them by Elmer Wayne Henley, 17, who has admitted taking part in the slayings and burials.

Henley told newsmen today that police would find "at least six more bodies buried in the sand dunes near High Island," a beach town east of Galveston. Henley said the bodies found today were those of teen-age boys from the Houston suburb of Pasadena.

If the death toll rises as high as Henley says, it would surpass that of the largest mass murder in U.S. history — the case in which Juan Corona was convicted of slaying 25 itinerant farm workers in Yuba City, Calif. The victims' bodies were found in the spring of 1971. Corona, 39, is in prison.

Explaining to newsmen why he has pointed out the graves, Henley told newsmen: "I felt I owed it to their parents to let them know what happened to them." He did not name the newly found victims and declined to answer some questions, saying the answers were between him and police.

Police said Henley, who at first said he had killed only Dean Corli, 33, the man he accused of the slayings, changed his statement Thursday and told police he and another youth had helped lure young boys to Corli for sex parties that led to torture and death.

Police said Henley told them that he and David Brooks, 18, of Houston, were given $5 to $10 a head for bringing the boys to homosexual parties at Corli's Pasadena home.

Police said Brooks was due to lead them to graves at High Island later today and would be arraigned on murder charges.

In locating the graves Thursday night, Henley told officers: "Here's some I got for Dean. He raped them, killed them, and brought them out here to bury them."

The first 17 bodies were unearthed at a boat storage stall in southwest Houston.

Houston Police Lt. Breck Porter said Henley told him that the victims had been killed over a three-year period.

Police said the case unfolded early Wednesday morning when Henley telephoned them and said he had killed Corli in self-defense at Corli's suburban Pasadena, Tex., home because Corli threatened to kill Henley and two other youths after an all-night sex and paint-spray sniffing party.

Henley told officers that Corli had killed other persons and buried them in the boat stall he had rented for the past three years. But police said Henley then told them he had participated in the sex slayings. Authorities said Henley implicated another 18-year-old Houston youth who has been taken into custody and is being held on suspicion of murder. Police said he was expected to sign a written statement today.

Some of the 17 bodies recovered by jail trustees from the 20-unit boat storage facility were wrapped in plastic bags and all had been covered with lime.

Virtually the entire floor of the stall was dug up, with depths ranging from two to six feet. Many of the corpses were stacked on top of each other with a layer of dirt in between.

San Augustine County Sheriff John Hoytt said the two bodies found near Lake Sam Rayburn were covered in lime and wrapped in plastic. He said authorities were certain they would find at least one more body at the site.

Positive identification of the bodies was not made pending autopsies, although some evidence and comparison of missing persons lists gave officers a few clues.

Agriculture, consumer bill to be signed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon was expected to sign today the 1973 Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act, attacked by critics as inflationary but defended by sponsors as vital to full farm production.

The four-year farm, food stamp and food-for-peace legislation passed Congress last week as a compromise between rural and urban interests.

The legislation gave the agriculture secretary new power over food prices, created a new farm price support system, dropped the annual payment ceiling from the current $55,000 per crop to $20,000 per farmer and boosted minimum milk price supports for two years.

It also revamped food stamp programs, allowed a twice yearly cost-of-living adjustment in the value of coupon allotments, permitted people in drug and alcohol treatment program to get food stamps, and partially restored food stamp eligibility for some old, blind and disabled people.

It continued the food-for-peace program but banned aid to North Vietnam unless specifically authorized by Congress. The government announced Thursday that procurements for food-for-peace shipments for the last part of this year have been suspended pending review of the uncertain U.S. supply situation.

The bill "assures farmers they will not be faced with complete loss of income in case of a market collapse, and will enable them to get the credit necessary for full production. Only with full production can we feed America and meet present export demands," Rep. W. R. Poage, D-Tex., said in the closing House debate.

Astronauts are given 'day off'

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Skylab 2's astronauts scheduled their first day off in space today after two weeks in their orbiting laboratory.

And like many an earthman on his day off, they have a lot of chores to do around the house. For one thing, there's much cleaning up and putting away to do after 13 very busy days. Mission Control also asked them to troubleshoot a couple of minor problems.

Also on schedule was the first space shower for Alan L. Bean, Dr. Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma.

The astronauts passed up their first planned day off last Friday in order to catch up on experiments that had fallen behind schedule because of technical problems and motion sickness suffered by all three men early in the mission.

They said earlier this week they'd be glad to work a few hours today on earth resources and solar astronomy experiments. They seemed disappointed when Mission Control rejected the idea.

Bean and Lousma Thursday conducted an earth resources study, photographing a slice of the earth from British Columbia to the Atlantic.

sanctuaries in Cambodia, according to a top secret memo made public Thursday.

The raids, from March 1969 to April 1970 were ordered at a time when the United States was professing to observe the neutrality of the Cambodian government.

The memo linking Laird, now President Nixon's top domestic adviser, to the deliberately camouflaged raids was released by Deputy Defense Secretary William P. Clements Jr. during testimony before the Senate Armed Services Committee.

The document, written by the former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Ret. Army Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, and initialed by Laird, outlines a plan under which simultaneous B-52 strikes would be made in Cambodia and South Vietnam. The strikes in South Vietnam, the memo said, were designed to provide "a resemblance to normal operations thereby providing a credible story for replies to press inquiries."

The memo, dated Nov. 20, 1969, also said other areas would be selected inside South Vietnam, which would not actually be struck. Instead, military record keepers would show each Cambodia mission as having occurred in South Vietnam.

A second set of statistics showing where the bombs actually fell was held by a tiny number of top civilian and military officials with a "need to know."

The Armed Services Committee has spent three weeks investigating why the Defense Department falsely reported that 3,630 B-52 strikes in Cambodia occurred in South Vietnam. Sen. Harold E. Hughes, D-Iowa, said, "This is the first indication I've had on paper that there were orders to enter false information in the record."

Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, the current chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said similar reporting methods were used as far back as 1966 and 1967 under the Johnson administration.

Testifying before the committee, Moorer released a second memo indicating former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara approved a similar method to the one approved by Laird and intended to lead the press astray.

That memo concerned 1967 B52 strikes in Laos.

The committee adjourned the hearings, indicating Laird may be called to testify next month.

'Multitude of sins' at Lucasville?

By DEAN SCHOTT

Associated Press Writer

LUCASVILLE, Ohio (AP)—A state senator from Cincinnati called the Southern Ohio Correctional Facility's problems a "multitude of sins" Thursday after he and four other members of a citizens' task force toured the tense prison.

After the 3½-hour tour through the maximum-security facility, state Sen. William F. Bowen, D-9 Cincinnati, said, "We do have some very serious problems. It's not just the inmates, the guards or the administration. It's a multitude of sins."

The five members of the Governor's Task Force on Criminal Justice visited the state's largest prison to investigate complaints of harsh security measures following the deaths of two guards July 24.

The group plans to make recommendations to Gov. John Gilligan.

REVEALS MURDER SCENE—Elmer Wayne Henley, 17, waits in a police car after showing Houston police the site where multiple murder victims were buried in the southwest part of the city. Henley reportedly shot the man responsible for the murders, reportedly numbering at least 21.

Agnew papers not turned over

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has retired to a desert resort for a long weekend, leaving behind the question of whether he will turn over his financial records to federal prosecutors probing political corruption in Maryland.

Agnew left Washington for Palm Springs, Calif., Thursday after reportedly being granted an indefinite extension on the prosecutors' request for the documents while his lawyers study the possibility of claiming immunity. Jay H. Topkis, one of Agnew's attorneys, said he would be in touch with the prosecutors next week.

Agnew was expected to return to Washington early next week.

Meanwhile, a federal grand jury in Baltimore, which since January has been investigating political kickbacks, heard several witnesses. Federal officials refused to say if the testimony involved Agnew.

The Vice President told a news conference Wednesday he has "absolutely nothing to hide" from the investigators, labeling as "damn lies" charges that he accepted political payoffs.

He said he would "make available at the appropriate time and in the appropriate way to the appropriate authorities" whatever records are needed, but added that "unprecedented constitutional questions" would have to be considered.

Never before has any president or vice president been involved in a federal criminal investigation while in office.

Agnew was notified Aug. 2 that he was under investigation for bribery, extortion, conspiracy and tax violations. A letter from U.S. Atty. George Beall requested Agnew's financial and tax records dating back to the beginning of his two year term as governor of Maryland in 1967. Beall had asked Agnew to turn over the documents by 2 p.m. Thursday.

The White House has declined any further discussion of Agnew's legal problems, saying the vice president "addressed himself quite forthrightly and quite directly" to the matter. Deputy White House Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren repeated that "the President has confidence in the vice president and the fact of the investigation does not change that."

is a travesty. I have a hard time envisioning any crime as grotesque as this situation."

Bowen said, "There's been a lot of frustration among the corrections officers, who have transferred it to the inmates." He attributed the feeling of the guards to efforts by two labor groups to organize the officers.

Dr. Harry Allen of Ohio State University called the corrections officers "green," adding that 80 per cent had no previous experience for the job. He said the number of guards should be increased and their training improved.

The group called for a restoration of normal activity as the prison.

Messerman said, "The doors must be opened, inmates put to work, and vocational facilities must be completed."

Ysabel Rennie of Columbus was the fifth member of the group.

slaughtered to insure at least some beef for their customers, said E. L. Alberson, of Dinner Bell Meats Inc., of Defiance.

"We can't afford to slaughter for our own accounts, so we've been slaughtering for individuals and stores," he said. "They've all been doing it. Even the chain stores."

Bill Decker, president of Val Decker Packing Co., Columbus, said the firm had slaughtered some cattle for Super Value stores, of Xenia.

A spokesman for the Ohio feedlot at London confirmed the store had arranged for purchase of 1,500 cattle at $60 a hundredweight, even though most packing companies stopped buying cattle at $48 because of the profit loss.

An official at Super Value said the corporation had arranged financing for the cattle on behalf of some of its independent stores.

He had "no comment" when asked how the stores could turn a profit on beef bought at that price.

Elberson said the price of beef could increase one-third or more when the price ceiling is lifted Sept. 12.

"When you remember the price of pork went up 33 per cent after the price freeze, you have to think beef will go up that much or more," he said.

A spokesman for Kroger Foods in Cleveland predicted a 20 per cent increase.

Stores throughout Ohio have reported selling Canadian beef, often at 25 and 30 cents per pound higher than domestic beef.

Checks at other stores revealed beef supplies 50-95 per cent gone. Some major chain stores reported "adequate supplies" through this week, but admitted they were trying to limit customer purchases.

Meanwhile, bread prices rose, keeping pace with increases in wheat and flour prices.

Some breads rose one to four cents in price last Monday, with the higher prices generally on variety breads.

Kroger, Taystee and Pennington breads were among those expected to go up in price next Monday.

Grocers blame the increases on a $7.26 to $13.60 jump in price for 100 pounds of flour since last year, and nearly three-fold hike in lard costs.

Wheat prices hit record highs this week at exchanges in Chicago, Minneapolis and Kansas City.

The American Baker's Association sent a telegram to President Nixon this week asking for federal control of wheat exports. The bakers warned that if there are no controls, bread will "disappear" in most of the United States by next June.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Some Ohio grocers may be beating the high cost of beef by slapping fancy names and fancy prices on the same old cuts of beef, warns a consumer protection advocate.

Jack Smith, former chairman of the Columbus Consumer Protection Commission and owner of a freezer meat concern said Thursday meat shoppers should beware of "nonsense" labels such as "backyard steaks" or "cookout steaks." They're probably just cheap cuts of meat renamed to be eligible for top ceiling prices as "specialty" items, he said.

Another misnomer is "Boston Roll," he said, which is hamburger covered with netting and sold as a roast.

"You could probably call it 'wheelbarrow steak' and get $4 a pound for it," said Dahl Baer, meat purchaser for a Columbus food chain.

Baer said if mislabeling were going on at all, it was in the smaller stores which he claimed were not being watched as closely by the Internal Revenue Service for price guideline violations.

Repricing items under different labels, or increasing the prices of items not covered by the price ceiling were at least two ways grocery stores were making up for beef sale losses, said one food industry official.

He noted, however, that some stores were buying meat wholesale at skyhigh prices, then selling it at a loss just to keep customers coming in to buy other food.

"The competition for meat is such that some stores are taking enormous losses just to have beef on the shelves," he said.

Many stores are buying cattle directly and having them custom

Old memo bares bombing policy

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A secret Pentagon memorandum, unveiled more than 6 years after it was written, provides a glimpse of the extremely tight control civilian officials exerted over the air war in Indochina.

Many military officers who served in World War II and Korea contended throughout the Indochina war that this degree of control was unprecedented.

The 1967 memorandum, made public by Deputy Secretary of Defense William P. Clements Jr. Thursday, lends support to claims by veteran air officers that civilian authorities right up to the White House called the important shots throughout the air war.

The Pentagon declassified the memo to show that a policy of covering up politically sensitive bombing operations in supposedly neutral nations adjoining South Vietnam had its roots in the Johnson administration.

The document, dated Feb. 23, 1967, deals with delegation of authority to the Joint Chiefs of Staff for B52 bombing strikes against targets in Laos.

This authority was subject to several key limitations.

After the military planners decided what targets they thought should be hit, they messaged their recommendations to Washington.

There the recommendations had to be reviewed by the State Department and the White House staff "sufficiently in advance of scheduled execution to permit effective deferral and-or veto action when appropriate," the memo directed.

The U.S. embassy in Vientiane, the Laotian capitol, also had to approve the strikes.

The same kinds of restrictions were instituted for the bombing of North Vietnam, starting in February 1965.

Not only were specific targets approved or disapproved at the White House, the State Department and the Pentagon, but civilian officials even directed what kind of bombs and other weapons could be used, what routes the bombers could take to certain targets, and other operational details normally left to military experts.

As one long-time Pentagon official put it, the bombing was used as a political instrument, designed in hopes of prodding North Vietnam into a negotiated settlement of the war.

Top aides join with President at Camp David

CAMP DAVID, MD., (AP) — President Nixon has gathered a trio of top aides for mountaintop consultations as he prepares his Watergate statement.

Joining Nixon Thursday in the seclusion of Camp David were presidential assistants Alexander M. Haig, Jr., and Ronald L. Ziegler. One of the top White House speech writers, Raymond K. Price, had come to the wooded compound with the President on Wednesday.

Aides said Nixon would spend the weekend working on his response to the latest Watergate developments. That response is expected to come about the middle of next week in the form of a nationally televised speech and a detailed "white paper" giving a point-by-point rebuttal of charges leveled against Nixon and his administration.

Also with the President are Mrs. Nixon and daughter Tricia Cox. Their other daughter and son-in-law, Julie and David Eisenhower, came to Camp David for dinner Thursday but did not spend the night.

Man gives $1 million to government

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Executors of the estate of Robert Hunter McIntosh, who wanted to show "appreciation for my country," were to fulfill his last will and testament today by turning over more than $1 million to the U.S. government.

U.S. Treasurer Romana Banuelos was to fly here to accept the $1,071,400.97 inheritance from McIntosh, who lived most of his life off stock investments.

McIntosh, of nearby Winter Park, Fla., died April 16, 1972, leaving a will stipulating that "after provisions for the payment of any income and estate taxes has been made, the rest, residue and remainder of my estate, I bequeath to the United States of America and request my executor to accompany delivery of the bequest by an appropriate letter stating forth my appreciation for my country."

Orlando broker Hugh Robinson said McIntosh owned about 150 stocks, mostly in oil companies and utilities, in blocks of 10 to 20 shares.

Robinson said McIntosh was a conservative market player who "insisted on quality stocks." And friends said McIntosh, a widower and childless, also led a conservative life.

Navy chief tells Scouts of ideals

MORaine STATE PARK, Pa. (AP) — Navy Secretary John W. Warner told 40,000 Boy Scouts at the dramatic finale of their 1973 National Jamboree that a troubled America today "is swinging back to the ideals and principles for which scouting stands."

"These are duty, honor, God and country," he said Thursday night before the scouts officially ended their week of fun by lighting up the dark night with flickering candles to symbolize the brotherhood of man.

Warner, himself an Eagle scout,

said: "Scouts always go to the top. Some day a boy at this Jamboree will be President of the United States."

It was the first of eight Jamborees, beginning in 1950, that didn't have a visit from the President. The White House had never turned down this year's invitation, a scout spokesman said, and all day there was speculation that President Nixon would appear.

Before the mammoth fireworks show, the scouts honored Ernie Banks, Chicago Cubs veteran first baseman, with its highest award, the Silver Buffalo.

An attack on noise

For the first time, the federal government has taken concrete action to do something about a widely recognized problem: noise pollution.

Its proposed rules for curbing the noise made by big interstate trucks, couples with general outlines of a plan to quiet planes and airports, are an important milestone.

That characterization was offered at a press conference by Alvin F. Meyer, head of the noise control office of the Environmental Protection Agency. Happily, he and his associates show signs of intending to make this the first of several milestones on the road toward control of what Meyer rightly calls a "major national environmental problem."

For years the common view was that, while noise was evidently on the increase in our mechanized society, this was a nuisance to be borne. It is far more than a nuisance. Excessive noise may have grave psychological and physiological effects.

Nor are these effects felt only by a relative handful of Americans. An EPA official declared, for example, that some 16 million of us are "severely impacted by aircraft noise."

Thus it is good to know that the agency proposes several actions to curb aircraft noise: lower permissible noise levels on new planes, regulations to control and reduce noise from existing aircraft, the setting of cumulative airport noise levels, and so forth. These proposals are the first moves to implement last year's Noise Control Act.

The sooner this and other pertinent actions are taken, the sooner we will bring under control a problem which greatly detracts from the quality of life in our country.

WASHINGTON CALLING . . . by Marquis Childs

The invasion of privacy

WASHINGTON — As Congress departed, intent like a flustered housewife on a long-promised vacation, so much was swept under the rug. While a beginning was made on reform of campaign spending in other areas where recent shocks have shown any urgent need for congressional action, the rule was to put it off to an indefinite future.

First and foremost is the invasion of privacy by bugging. The practice has proliferated at a fantastic rate, not only in government at every level but with private eyes and snoopers using with impunity the latest and most-sensitive electronic devices.

Capable of penetrating solid walls, they leave not a shred of privacy to unsuspecting individuals.

The revelation that President Nixon had secretly taped the conversations of every visitor to his office, from heads of state to Watergate conspirators, was a shattering example of the practice. But, quite apart from government tapes and taps, the way this insidious surveillance has spread through the channels of law enforcement is even more alarming.

IN A CASE in Federal District Court where the government pressed a perjury-conspiracy charge with secret tapes made by an informer, Judge Gerhard A. Gesell spoke out with characteristic forthrightness. Nothing in the Constitution nor in present law prohibits this practice, Gesell noted.

THESE DAYS . . . by John Chamberlain

Kids turn to games of strategy

Sen. Lowell Weicker, tangling with Bob Haldeman in the Watergate hearings, seemed to resent that the White House was troubled in the later 1960s over the possibility that foreign influences were behind the demonstrations organized by the New Left. I can't believe that Weicker's outburst against Haldeman really represents his point of view.

There may not have been any Moscow-directed conspiracy to disrupt our election processes, but the contagion of the Maoist-Che Guevara philosophy throughout the Sixties was obvious. It would not have been surprising to discover at the very least a conspiracy pitched toward spreading Maoist and Guevarist literature, and Richard Nixon's team would have been derelict if it had failed to respond to the situation.

The means chosen by the White House to combat the demonstrations were, of course, something else again. Weicker is right when he expresses his disgust with the things done in the name of better plumbing.

But the Watergate investigations will have done this nation a palpable harm if people are to be left with the idea that there was nothing to worry about in the mood of the Sixties. The period itself was fully as stupid as the Watergate burglaries, buggings and blunders.

I WAS APPALLED, in talking to high school and college students in the late Sixties, to discover that strategic concerns about the world balance of power meant absolutely nothing to them. History had no lessons to impart. The struggle between two opposed philosophies of life to dominate strong points on the globe did not matter.

The Vietnamese War was bad not because it was fought stupidly but because it was fought at all. The only thing of importance connected with geography was ecology. Wars would never happen again simply because they were morally outrageous, as all possible participants could surely be counted on to see.

Such an attitude, if continued throughout the Seventies, can have only one end: the surrender of the United States to any coalition of new barbarians that cares to take us on.

Who is going to save us? Maybe the inventors of popular games will have something to do with it. On any rainy day the eighth and ninth grade boys in my neighborhood get together to play some of the new games of strategy. The most popular is the one called Risk. Right behind this is another called Diplomacy.

The objective of Risk is to conquer the world; the objective of Diplomacy is to take over Europe by a combination of behind-the-scenes maneuvering, warlike bluffs and battles whenever necessary.

THE SIXTIES would have deemed such games immoral. But they call attention to realities. One reality of the game called Risk is that if you don't keep your armaments up to snuff, then some Genghis Khan will overrun you.

Another reality is that the possession of certain strong points is needed if you are to keep your flanks from being turned. The cleverest kids get the main ideas quickly. They will not be fooled in later life into believing that it doesn't matter who controls the Panama Canal or the straits at Singapore or the air approaches to the industrial Northeast of the U.S.

A new publication, Strategic Review, with the perspicacious Maj. Gen. Thomas A. Lane in charge of its editorial content, has just been started by the U.S. Strategic Institute in Washington, D.C. Among the publication's directors are retired Admiral John S. McCain Jr., formerly chief of our naval forces in the Pacific, and retired Gen. Bruce K. Holloway, who was until recently the boss of our Strategic Air Command.

If the kids who grew up in the benighted Sixties fail to rally to Strategic Review, editor Tom Lane will have to scrape along with older readers until the 15-year-old Risk and Diplomacy players reach maturity.

But that won't be long in coming; I hardly know a 15-year-old today who doesn't have more sense than lots of the kids who are now in their early 20s.

Things we could do without

NEW YORK (AP) — Things we could all do without:

Musical liquor bottles that play "How dry I am."

Colored bedsheets printed with chessboard patterns or festooned clusters of writhing snakes.

Gold and diamond studded bracelets — four in a set — for pampered pet dogs.

Smutty phrases on sweatshirts for teen-agers.

People with a high I.Q. (intelligence quotient) who fail at anything they try because it isn't backed up by a high M.Q. (motivation quotient).

Professional athletes in any sport who go on strike unless they are paid a salary amounting to nearly half their weight in gold each season.

Television actors who fell 250-pound thugs with a single karate chop that actually wouldn't give a headache to an ailing midget.

The 14-to-15 ounce pound popular with many bouncers. Whatever happened to the old-fashioned 16-ounce pound?

Rainbow-hued capsules of medicine that do you no more good than a sniff of sugar.

Adults who tacitly condone their children's going to marijuana puffing parties because they say it might keep the kids from doing something worse.

Roundabout vacation resorts where the bedbugs outnumber the mosquitoes and fare better.

Schoolteachers who go to summer school only with the hopeful aim of marrying a seedy Ph.D.

Fingerprints on the icing of your birthday cake.

Cocktail parties at which the host pours the first drink from a triple-shot glass and all the rest from a thimble.

Teen-agers who describe everything from a sunset to a car accident with the same phrase: "Isn't it gross?"

The monologues of dentists when they are trying to take your mind off what they are doing to you.

Ladies who wear so much mascara it runs in the rain.

Fearful passengers who have to be three sheets to the wind before they will climb aboard an airplane.

The degrading cupidity of contestants on a television giveaway show getting excited over the prospect of getting something for nothing — the New American Dream.

From these and other burdensome afflictions of mind and spirit, deliver us, Amen.

Dear Abby:

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Should 'other woman' go to daughter's wedding?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been separated for over a year. He has been living all this time with the woman he left me for after 26 years of marriage.

My husband is 60, she is 46, and I am 58. I knew he had been seeing her, but I ignored it, hoping he'd get over her.

Our daughter is getting married soon. She wants a small garden wedding with a few close friends and relatives. We were once a very happy family and my daughter wants her father at her wedding.

I hear he is planning on bringing this other woman to the wedding. I've never seen her, but friends say she is the clinging, loud, possessive type.

I have not been in communication with him since he left me, so there is no way I can ask him not to bring his lady friend to the wedding. If he brings her, how far must my good manners be stretched? Unfortunately, I still care for him, but I don't want to play the role of the poor rejected wife.

DISTRESSED IN N.J.

DEAR DISTRESSED: If your daughter wants her father to attend her wedding, she should, without any prompting, ask to come alone. If he is as much a gentleman as you are a lady, he'll not insist on bringing his friend with him. If he does, and your daughter makes her welcome, feeling as you do, you have a right to stay away, and I wouldn't blame you. Your daughter should see to it that your feelings are protected and if she doesn't, she will have made the choice.

DEAR ABBY: Seymour and I went together for about a year. We declared our love for each other and talked about marriage. We fought a lot over trivial things. It was one of those off-again, on-again romances from the start.

Last month, in anticipation of his birthday which is next week, I bought him a silver wine goblet and had both our names engraved on it. Well, we just had a terrible fight and broke up for good. Seymour asked me to return all the gifts he'd given me, but I refused.

Abby, since I bought the goblet for Seymour I think I should give it to him anyway. My friends say I shouldn't. What do you say?

NOTSURE

DEAR NOT: If you give Seymour the goblet anyway, he will think you want the romance to be on again. (Do you?) "To thine own self be true."

DEAR ABBY: I am an adult and I want to change my WHOLE name. I never liked my given name. It is confusing inasmuch as it's used for both males and females. My family name is very long and difficult to spell and pronounce, and even more difficult to remember.

What is the procedure? Does it cost anything? How long does it take? Whom do I have to see, and where is that person (or office) located? Thank you.

I.M. SERIOUS

DEAR SERIOUS: The procedure is a legal one, so see a lawyer. You should have no difficulty changing your WHOLE name for the above mentioned reasons.

David and Abigail

And when Abigail saw David, she hastened, and lighted off the ass, and fell before David. . . and bowed herself to the ground. —Samuel: 25-23

The enmity between King Saul and David, the young shepherd, continued for many years. Three times Saul attempted to kill his erstwhile friend and three times he failed. Finally to escape him, David went into the wilderness of Maon where dwelt an immensely wealthy man called Nabal. David sent messengers to him asking hospitality but Nabal dismissed them with evil churlishness. David, enraged, set out with his men to avenge the insult but Abigail, Nabal's beautiful wife, saw him coming and, with her servants bearing food, wine and gifts, went to meet him. She pleaded with David to shed no blood and he, touched by her plea, put up his sword. Ten days later Nabal died and David made Abigail his wife.

Indian religion hinges on natural harmony

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
"If you shoot the eagle, you are shooting yourself."

So said a learned, old Indian sage, Black Elk, in confiding to a university professor the religious views of the Oglala Sioux.

It is an outlook that links together all reality—thought, objects, creatures, deeds and environment—each as living, influential parts of the other and all reflecting their supreme spiritual source.

This unifying perspective, once dismissed as primitive in white society but now harmonizing even with modern science and ecological concerns, is getting increasing attention in theological studies in this country.

Unlike other western cultures, "American Indian traditions generally do not fragmentize experience into mutually exclusive kinds of dichotomies," says Dr. Joseph Epes Brown, a University of Montana expert on beliefs of Indians.

Rather, they "stress modes of inter-relatedness across categories of meaning, never losing sight of an ultimate wholeness," he told a recent colloquium sponsored by the Menil foundation in Houston, Texas.

To Indians, the supernatural is fused with the natural, matter with energy, analyses with intuition, action with meaning, symbols with forces they convey, human life with animal, vegetable and mineral life, the inanimate with the animate.

"The Indian sees that all that exists is animate, each form in its own special way, so that even rocks have a life of their own and are believed to be able to talk under certain conditions," Brown said.

"The total world of experience is seen as infused with the sacred."

Dr. Brown, a religious historian and anthropologist who has specialized on the spiritual legacy of American Indians, is one of few white scholars with whom Indian friends have shared intimate rites of their faith.

For a white to be admitted into that inner circle of confidence about Indian religion is a rare thing, accorded only to those holding full trust not to misrepresent a deeply cherished heritage.

"If the American Indian traditions speak with special force today, it is partly due to the reactions of many against the fragmented quality of our own society," Brown said.

Among Indians, he said, religion cannot "be separated from the forms and dynamics of everyday life" — a sharp contrast with most major religions in which their theological systems can be formulated apart from living experience.

Not so with American Indians in which concepts and values are delineated through the "voices" of nature, its forms, actions and forces, its visual and pictorial images, Brown said.

At the colloquium at Houston's Rothko chapel, focusing mostly on Oriental and other non-western religions, Brown told of his first, puzzling experience in exploring Indian religion first-hand.

He said that he sat with his tutor, Black Elk, "waiting anxiously for him

Tradition dictates quiet confidence in our experience.

MR. AND MRS. ALAN R. SNIDER

Wedding in Tipp City is announced here

Miss Cynthia Jean Mark, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Fred M. Mark of Tipp City, and the granddaughter of Mrs. Mary Mark and Harry Buchanan, both of Washington C.H., became the bride of Alan Russell Snider, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell C. Snider, Brooklyn, Mich.

The Rev. Mr. Mark and Rev. William Kollar officiated for the double-ring ceremony at 2:30 p.m. Saturday in the United Methodist Church in Tipp City. The altar was centered with three candlesticks and an arrangement of white gladioli, large yellow and white mums centered with peach carnations. Seven branch candelabra flanked the chancel.

Miss Judith Witham of Lebanon, organist, and Miss Jo Krieger of Delta, vocalist, friends of the bride, presented special wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a candlelight satin gown with matching sheer overlay styled with Victorian lace edged bodice, skirt and tiered train ruffles. The sleeves were long and full. Scattered yellow and peach rosebuds embroidered the gown. Her chapel length illusion veil was caught to a band of ribbon. The engagement necklace of the bride's maternal grandmother featuring a circle of seed pearls centered with a diamond was worn by the bride. She carried a colonial bouquet of gardenia bordered by peach roses and baby's breath.

Miss Marilyn Munsell of Hudson, Mich., college roommate of the bride, was the maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Shirley Nichols of Southfield, Mich., college friend of the bride, Miss Anne Shurts of Lebanon, high school friend, and Miss Carol Buchanan of Seattle, Wash., cousin of the bride. They wore country print gowns featuring peach, rose and white following the style of that of the bride, peach velvet belts and matching headpieces with baby's breath carried out the color scheme. Each carried a spray bouquet with peach roses and baby's breath.

Kevin Snider, brother of the groom, served as best man. Seating the wedding guests were Greg Mark, brother of the bride, Terry Chrisman of Bryan, college roommate of the groom, and Jim Walsh of North Canton, college friend of the groom.

Mrs. Mark chose for her daughter's wedding a pink dress with decorative pearl at the waistline and a pink orchid. The groom's mother wore a blue dress with white accessories and also a pink orchid.

A luncheon was served to the 100 out-of-town guests in the church dining room following the wedding ceremony. Hostesses were Miss Barbara Young and Miss Linda Peterson of Michigan and Miss Debra Rinard of Bryan.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Snider will be at home to their friends at 846 Fleming, Jackson, Mich., 49202, after Sunday, following a wedding trip to Pilagan State Park Lodge, Angola, Ind.

The bride, a graduate of Napoleon High School and Adrian College, is a member of Alpha Sigma Alpha Sorority. She majored in elementary education. Her husband, a graduate of Brooklyn High School, Brooklyn, Mich., and Adrian College, is a computer programmer for Hancock Industries, Jackson, Mich.

Out-of-town guest came from Cincinnati, Lebanon, Oxford, Orient, Washington C.H., Napoleon, and Toledo, Ohio, also Bellevue, Wash., Jackson, Brooklyn, Lansing and Napoleon, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Sinder entertained the bridal party to dinner in Terry's Cafeteria private dining room in Piqua following rehearsal.

We're strumming up a storm, guitarman says

NEW YORK (AP) — The day of the guitar is finally arriving, according to vice president Robert P. Bull, of Fender Musical Instruments, which produces electric guitars and amplifiers.

Although the guitar has been America's most popular instrument for several years, more people are buying it, playing it and listening to it than ever before. Bull says.

He believes the upsurge indicates the tremendous increase in participation in music, most of it by young people, and with most emphasis on the guitar. He points out that the guitar is light, convenient, portable, highly versatile and can be amplified through a volume range of whispering to thundering.

Corn and wheat at record levels

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says this season's corn and wheat crops will be at record levels, although not as high as was thought a month ago.

Deputy Asst. Secretary Richard E.

Bell was reluctant to estimate how the reduced crop forecasts would affect grocery prices. But he conceded: "I can't say that I think they will be lower."

The department's Outlook and Situation Board had predicted Wednesday that retail prices for all of 1973 could average 18 to 22 per cent above 1972 averages, depending on the effectiveness of Phase 4 controls and on the accuracy of July crop estimates.

In most significant cases Thursday, the July estimates did not hold.

Three hours after the August crop-production report came out Thursday with estimates of corn and soybeans, Butz said that where export controls are concerned, "The policy of the government remains as the President outlined in his July 18 statement."

At that time, Nixon said, "Permanent control of exports is not the policy of this government, and we do not intend to broaden the controls beyond those now in force."

Controls would not be needed, Nixon said, "unless present crop expectations are seriously disappointing or foreign demands are extremely large."

Two hours before Butz's statement on export controls, Bell noted the lowered crop estimates and of mounting prices for wheat and grain on commodity markets.

"We have to study the data...over the next several days," Bell said repeatedly.

Meanwhile, as the price of wheat hit $4.41 a bushel on the Chicago commodity exchange, compared with $1.71 a year ago, international wheat experts predicted the world wheat crisis could last until January.

Arabella the space spider given chance to come home

LEXINGTON, Mass. (AP) — Arabella the space spider has done such a good job of web spinning on the Skylab space station that she may have won herself a return ticket home.

The original plan called for leaving the spiders to die in space after completing the experiment to see how weightlessness affected their web spinning abilities.

Both spiders were fed flies before going into space and this last meal was supposed to keep them alive for only the first month of the 59-day flight.

But after Arabella's stirring performance, Astronaut Owen K. Garriott gave her and her sister, Anita, a piece of his filet mignon. It's hoped the human food will keep them alive for the rest of the mission.

Storm hits Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—A fierce storm that raked into northeastern Ohio from Lake Erie late Thursday night knocked down power lines in Cleveland and hospitalized a 45-year-old man who was touched by a broken line.

Hospital officials said Robert E. Lynch was in serious condition.

Police said Lynch was injured when he tried to flip a fallen power line away from an area where children were walking. Another man probably saved Lynch's life by lifting the wire from Lynch's chest after he was knocked to the ground, police said.

Several thousand Cleveland homes were blacked out temporarily after the storm ripped down wires across the city.

Police in Cleveland and surrounding suburbs said a number of trees were damaged by the high winds and that about two dozen minor traffic accidents were believed to be storm-related.

Hummingbirds feed on tiny insects as well as on the nectar of flowers.

DEBBIE DUFF

Debbie Duff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Duff, of 5809 Washington-Waterloo Rd., has received notice that she is to be featured in the seventh annual edition of "Who's Who Among American High School Students."

Miss Duff, a 1973 graduate of Miami Trace High School, has been active in 4-H, Junior Leadership, Junior Fair Board, American Field Service, Future Teachers of America, Future Homemakers of America, band, National Honor Society and Area Teen Council.

She received the Buckeye Key Leader Award, attended the Ohio 4-H Club Congress, Junior Leadership Camp, the Citizenship Short Course and was recently named one of five Outstanding 4-H'ers in Fayette County.

She will compete for one of ten $1,000 scholarship awards funded by the publishers and will be invited to participate in the firm's annual "Survey of High Achievers" later in the year.

Miss Duff plans to attend Ohio State University in September and major in pre-law or physical therapy.

Jeff Downs, a 1973 graduate of Washington Senior High School, has been notified that he is to be featured in the seventh annual edition of "Who's Who Among American High School Students, 1972-1973," the largest award publication in the nation.

Students from more than 18,000 public, private and parochial high schools throughout the country are recognized for their leadership in academics, athletics, activities or community service in the book. Fewer than 2 per cent of the junior and senior class students nationwide are awarded this recognition.

Downs is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl R. Downs, 811 S. Main St. During high school he was a member of the varsity basketball team, the Sunburst yearbook staff, the Youth in Government program, the WSHS Hi-Y club and the American Field Service program.

He presently is employed at the Washington Savings Bank.

EPA checks out complaints about burning

Complaints of open burning in Washington C.H. are being checked by the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency. Miss Susan Goetz, field biologist for the Ohio EPA in Dayton, was in the city this week.

She said that before the agency "clamps down" on the no-burning regulations, it wants everyone to be aware of the new laws.

She said the open burning of trash, waste paper and landscape waste is now prohibited in practically every town and city in Ohio. This open burning ban applies to all persons living within restricted areas, including Washington C.H.

A "restricted area" is defined as the area within the boundaries of any municipal corporation, plus a zone extending 1,000 feet beyond the boundaries of any municipality having a population between 1,000 and 10,000 persons. For municipalities having more than 10,000 persons, the restricted area extends one mile beyond the corporation limits.

If a municipality does not have a collection service, the residents would be allowed to burn. This would, however, only be allowed until collection service is available or until July 1, 1975, which ever is sooner. Many communities have already responded to the regulation by initiating collection services, she said.

FARMERS and other Ohioans who live outside a restricted area may burn under certain conditions. These conditions include burning on the premises where the waste originated and 1,000 feet from the nearest residential area, burning only when conditions are such as to readily dissipate the smoke and only after certain wastes have been stacked and dried. Care should be taken to avoid causing a visibility problem if the burning is done near a highway, airport or railroad, according to the agency representative.

For large burning operations such as land clearing projects, permission must be obtained from the Ohio EPA before any wastes can be burned. Anyone interested in obtaining permission should write to the Ohio EPA and outline where and why the burning is to take place.

If air pollution is to be controlled all sources must be covered by the regulations. Open burning is hazardous to the health of the people in the vicinity.

Last fall, 40 children in Mount Vernon were hospitalized and many more were treated for allergic reactions to the open burning of leaves.

Although the majority of the Ohio EPA emission regulations apply to "visible" sources of air pollution, the open burning regulation literally affects every citizen in Ohio, the EPA says. "The Ohio EPA will be working hard to control these larger sources of air pollution but it is up to each citizen to do his part if air pollution is to be controlled," Miss Goetz said.

C. of C. directors meet

Hiestand discusses Assembly's progress

Progress by the 110th General Assembly was discussed Thursday afternoon by State Rep. Joseph F. Hiestand, R-77, of Hillsboro, when he met with the Washington C. H. Area Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors.

Hiestand reviewed the $10 billion budget bill, the largest in the state's history. Other topics included were land appraisal, voter registration, no-fault automobile insurance, ethics legislation, revenue sharing and Environmental Protection Agency legislation.

A short session, possibly 90 days or less, was predicted by Hiestand for the second half of the current session which begins Jan. 1, 1974. The current Assembly will reconvene briefly on Aug. 27.

IN RECENT WEEKS attention has been given to the possibility of Deer Creek Lake in Fayette and Pickaway counties being considered for development of lodge and vacation cabin facilities. Alum Creek Reservoir in Delaware County has been under consideration, but additional land acquisition and other factors have caused planners to take another look.

The Chamber has contacted U.S. Rep. William H. Harsha, R-6, in regard to the proposal, and the board's executive committee will be working with the Circleville Area Chamber of Commerce in studying the plan.

After hearing and discussing a report by the legislative and congressional action committee, the Chamber board agreed that early passage of the Alaska Pipeline Legislation is in the best interest of the nation, and that early delivery of this oil and gas will hopefully ease the energy crisis. The board has agreed to contact the Ohio delegation urging their support.

In other action Thursday, the board reviewed the 1973 Fayette County Fair, heard reports from the education and physicians committees, appointed a study committee to determine the possibility of more local involvement in the monthly flea markets, and agreed to pursue a Chamber accreditation program sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Rhodes sees grass roots support

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Former Gov. James Rhodes emerged from a meeting with small county Republican chairmen Thursday night and expressed confidence his candidacy for a third term had grassroots support.

"I am very encouraged at this point," Rhodes said. "I think I have the support of most of these people, big city and small county organizations alike."

While not endorsing Rhodes' candidacy outright, chairmen attending the meeting passed a resolution encouraging him to run.

Rhodes said 50 small county chairmen attended the private meeting, but one chairman present put the figure closer to 20.

The chairman, who is not noted as a Rhodes backer and asked that his name not be used, said support of Rhodes at the meeting was somewhat less than enthusiastic.

He said only three persons spoke on Rhodes' behalf. "They were mostly Rhodes cabinet officials and hangers-on from his days as governor," he said.

Rhodes predicted the Gilligan administration's mistakes in the field of penal reform would be a major campaign issue.

He emphasized that he is a candidate for governor and "would not be, under any circumstances, a candidate for the U.S. Senate."

There has been speculation that Rhodes would run for the Senate if incumbent Sen. William Saxbe, R-Ohio, voiced interest in the governorship.

Searchers seek to pinpoint boy's radio distress signals

CHILLILI, N.M. (AP) — Searchers combed through conflicting reports today as they continued their efforts to locate the origin of radio distress signals broadcast by a boy who identified himself only as Larry and said he was lost.

Authorities said the reports have come from persons who said they have heard the boy's signal in various places in New Mexico. But the searchers have been unable to pinpoint the origin of the signal.

"We're having a heck of a time tracking down all these rumors coming from California to Ontario, Canada—all of which have been proven false," said State Police Sgt. A.B. Whitehouse, who is heading the police effort.

"Everybody is in the process of trying to relay something. I think we better get our information together and get the truth separated from rumors," Whitehouse said.

The boy's radio signals have grown weaker since the first distress calls were heard Tuesday night by citizens band operators.

"Some of the radio operators who were getting strong signals from the boy Wednesday night say the signal is faint now," said a state police dispatcher.

The voice was first reported to New Mexico authorities by a California citizens band operator. She said the boy told her his father had collapsed at the wheel of their pickup truck in New Mexico and the truck had overturned. The voice said his name was Larry and he was seven years old.

Cattle raisers caught in cost price pinch

By JAMES WILSON
Associated Press Writer
MISSION, S.D. (AP) — Howard Lamoureux is one of the high-rollers of the Great Plains.

He has survived blizzards and droughts for half a century while building a 17,000-acre cattle ranch. But he's not sure how he survived the high cost of raising beef, and says ranchers have much more to lose than consumers from today's soaring market prices.

"We can lose everything we have," he says.

Lamoureux and his grandson, Bill Potter, operate the 27-square mile spread between Mission, S.D., and Valentine, Neb., in the heart of the cattle country of the Upper Midwest. They raise about 500 head of their own cattle and graze another 2,500 head for cowmen who have the money to buy calves but don't have the grass to fatten them.

The ranchers buy 400-pound calves in the fall, feed them to about 800 pounds during the next 12 months and then sell to feeders who fatten the animals for commercial slaughter.

Last fall Lamoureux and Potter sold 350 head of yearlings for $42.50 a hundredweight. Last week they rejected an offer of $50 a hundredweight.

"I asked $55 and was turned down," said Potter, 25. "Two days later I heard feeders were paying $65 a hundred for yearlings. The market is so wild nobody knows what they're worth."

Potter said his yearlings will go to sales barns after the Sept. 12 beef freeze ends. "We don't know what they're worth but an auction should get us a fair price," he said.

Name Gilligan in Burr Oak park action

CAMBRIDGE, Ohio (AP)—Common Pleas Judge Merle Hoddinott is expected to rule next week on a contempt of court action sought against Gov. John Gilligan for closing the lodge and cabins at Burr Oak State Park.

The action was filed by Ohio Inns, Inc., the firm that operates the lodge and restaurant at the park.

It claims Gilligan violated a Guernsey County Common Pleas Court order directing the state not to interfere in the operation or in a labor dispute between Ohio Inns and employees seeking union recognition.

State attorneys argued during a hearing before Hoddinott Thursday that the situation changed after the court order was issued July 19. They cited incidents of breach of peace, civil disorder and threat of bloodshed.

Ohio Inns contended the governor did not have the authority to close the facilities.

When Gilligan issued the closing order last week, he said he was doing it in the interest of public safety and cited several recent incidents and three bomb threats.

SIDNEY, Ohio (AP)—Monarch Machine Tool Co. directors Thursday declared a 15-cent dividend payable Sept. 1 to common shareholders of record Aug. 21.

Guards grumble at Lucasville

By JACK HALL
The Portsmouth Times
LUCASVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Guards at the new Southern Ohio Correctional Facility, consistent critics of the year-old prison, griped louder than ever after two of their fellow officers were killed last month.

"The prisoners call that place Lucasville Hilton and we serve as bellhops to them," said Guard Frank Yerardi.

"They tell us what they want to do and we can't do anything about it."

A group of guards met the other day in the Teamster Union hall, prin-

Lamoureux, in his 70s, and Potter, an Air Force veteran who has worked with his grandfather most of his life, said the prices sound good but there's another side of the coin. They said overhead costs have tightened the profit margin to the point where only the high prices at the market are saving the business.

"Last year we paid $220 a ton for the high-protein feed that supplements the wild hay we feed the cattle," Potter said. "Today it costs $350 a ton."

"That was a $25,000 tractor you saw being hauled away for repairs," the rancher said. "We've got two more rigs for cutting hay that cost $15,000 apiece. You can't buy a tractor for less than $10,000."

Potter said the next problem may be the accelerating cost of purchasing calves for the next crop. "Last year we paid $52.50 a hundredweight for the calves. The price could go out of sight this year."

His grandfather added: "The only bigger gambler than a cattle rancher is a farmer."

"Sometimes I really get angry," Potter said. "I wished the meat boycotters could come out here some week in the winter when we're working 10 or 11 hours a day in below-zero weather feeding the animals. We work Sunday mornings, and last winter I worked all day on Christmas and New Year's."

"Starting Monday we'll have to work 14 straight days getting the hay up. Then we'll have to sort cattle and get them ready to sell. After we buy our new crop of calves, we vaccinate them, dehorn and brand them and check for illnesses."

Ten miles to the northwest toward the community of Mission, there is another Lamoureux operation, smaller in land but larger in the number of livestock.

Howard's brother, Claude, owned and operated the ranch for more than a quarter of a century until his death two months ago. Bob Lamoureux, Claude's son, is looking after it today while continuing his job for the Caterpillar Tractor Co. in Peoria, Ill.

The ranch covers 13,000 acres and is considered by cattlemen in South Dakota and northern Nebraska as perhaps the best balanced operation in the region. Its lush pastures provide feed for more than a 1,000 cattle and calves.

"Ranchers are taking a bum rap for the high cost of beef," said Bob Lamoureux, a middle-aged civil engineer. "In 1948, my dad sold 400 head of yearlings for 30 cents a pound. Today they may be worth 60 cents a pound. But the cost of machinery, feed supplements and labor has increased sevenfold."

Howard and Bob Lamoureux own about 50 square miles of South Dakota prairie worth more than $2 million. They acknowledge that between them they have about $200,000 worth of machinery. The auction price of their combined cow and cattle herds would bring them more than $1 million.

Howard Lamoureux says a rancher is fortunate to make 2 per cent on his investment.

"But," said Bob Lamoureux, "we could make more money if we had the money we have invested in ranching in government bonds instead. But we have two things going for us: the continuing appreciation of the value of the land and the fact that we are doing something we enjoy."

cipally to share complaints about the $32.5 million prison. They talked most about leniency, guard shortages, inadequate training, overburdened bureaucracy and the lack of a death penalty.

"If an inmate cuts your guts out, you are supposed to pat him on the back and tell him you know he comes from a broken home," told Glenn Bailey, a four-year veteran of Ohio's penal system.

Ed Pemberton said one guard sometimes take the place of three within the walls. He rationalized uneasily, "It's a case of dollars versus safety and security."

"Security should be the first part of a guard's training. But it's the last," said Officer Gary Lundy.

"The training we receive at the academy is useless. We receive no training in self-defense or riot control."

"Treatment of the men is all we're taught. We are told to forget everything we learned at Ohio Penitentiary because that is the old way and this is the new way," complained Yerardi.

"One guard is locked in a cell block with 80 men," Bailey said. "What kind

The guards were emphatic that a death penalty for killing a law enforcement officer, including prison guards, must be restored by the Ohio legislature.

NEW YORK (AP) — Alan Abel, who often pops up on radio and TV to deliver a hoax or two, last month was investigated by the Federal Bureau of Investigation about a hoax concerning the Watergate hearings.

A source close to the investigation — Abel, to be precise — says it happened a few weeks after he and a female colleague hoaxed some members of the fourth estate at a news conference in Washington, D.C.

His colleague, an actress, posed as a repentant call girl who'd been prompted by the nationally-televized Watergate hearings to come forth with her own revelations of high-level hanky-panky.

She spoke of political espionage in boudoirs, paid for by Republicans who hired her to fool around with Democrats and by Democrats who hired her to fool around with Republicans.

The lady, who gave her dimensions as "37-24-35½," also told of one Washington orgy attended by "a who's who — in the nude, of course."

All of it was sheer imagination and the handiwork of Abel, 46, and a professional hoaxer since 1959, when he drew national attention with his campaign to clothe naked animals.

Alas, after Abel's latest caper, a prankster phoned Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., head of the Senate Watergate Committee, and passed himself off successfully, if briefly, as Treasury Secretary George Schultz.

He told Ervin the White House would give the committee its secret, Watergate-related tape recordings. Ervin reported this during the hearings, but quickly learned it was a hoax. The FBI was called in.

Abel, who is serious only when emphasizing he had no part in the Ervin hoax, which violated a federal law, says the FBI apparently remembered his earlier legitimate hoax and got to wondering.

The next thing, he said, was that two FBI agents came to his Manhattan apartment, interrogated him for two hours and warned "that I was the

Whenever the photo credit line "by Joe Clark, HBSS" pops up, I recall an unpretentious buddy with a folksy sense of wisdom and homespun humor plus an ingenious flair for producing story-telling pictures.

Years ago, he and I met at photo short courses and seminars and he was called — and still is — "Detroit's best known photographer." But he never stopped reminiscing — and still doesn't — about his Cumberland Gap beginnings in the Tennessee hills. That's where he acquired his degree, HBSS. It stands for Hill Billy Snap Shooter.

For Joe Clark, now 68 and with roots in Cumberland Gap and Detroit, photography like charity begins at home.

"People have a notion they have to travel abroad to get 'great pictures'," he says. "They fancy all they need is the Taj Mahal, Swiss Alps or the spiffy uniform of a Vatican papal guard."

"Taint so. There are good pictures under our noses in our own backyards. But you have to sniff 'em out to really see them. And you also have to feel... to care. When you put feeling into pictures of people doing simple everyday things, you can make great pictures."

THE MOST recent book about his native Cumberland Gap, "Tennessee Hill Folk" by Joe Clark, HBSS, has an introductory essay by Jesse Stuart. He's another native mountain boy who grew up to rhapsodize about the area, but his medium is poetry and prose.

Stuart rates Clark's 80 photos in the book (published by Vanderbilt University Press, Nashville, Tenn.) as immortal gems, a permanent testimonial to a vanishing way of life.

When Clark made his first photos in the 1930s, he never dreamed he was photographing for posterity — he was only taking pictures of his kinfolk and neighbors for his personal album.

He also wanted to show them to his fellow workers on the graveyard shift at a Detroit department store to go along with his hill folk stories. But even then it was evident he handled his $12 camera with the instinctive eye and feeling of a photographer at heart.

Lady Luck came along at this period. She managed to have a man from advertising happen to see Clark's photos. He was impressed enough to produce a store display. This was seen by a Life editor and the magazine bought and ran a spread on a mountain wedding photographed in a rain.

With the discovery that people paid money for photographs, Joe Clark, department store janitor and night watchman, became a full-time photographer with this own degree: HBSS.

"Yup, I quit work, got into photography and have never worked since!" he says with a chuckle. "Leastwise, I enjoy it so much I can't call it work."

IN DETROIT, Joe's Philosophy photography was illustrated some time ago in a University of Detroit exhibition, "It's the Simple Things That Count." It consisted of about 200 photographs in black-and-white and 40 in color, all of which were taken within 25 miles of Joe Clark's home.

The pictures included people, activities and scenes which touch the lives of countless families in everyday living. Despite the diversity of subject matter, the photos had a common bond: they looked deceptively easy to take... snapshot easy. Actually, like most great pictures, they required an extra something — creative thinking or feeling — in each situation to achieve visual impact.

"That extra something may be in a wise choice of what to shoot," Clark says, "or the story-telling angle you select. Maybe it's hitting the peak instant when you press that button or maybe it's the way you use light to create drama or mood in the picture. Maybe the extra something is just the confidence and friendship you convey to people in front of your lens... and their trust in you."

Even when all the various ingredients for a good picture are gathered together, it often takes a lot of shooting to make them jell, to capture just one shot in which the elements blend in perfect harmony.

"Every great picture is made on one single frame with just one snap of the shutter," says the Hill Billy Snap Shooter. "It doesn't matter how many frames in between you have to throw away. So you must approach each and every picture you take as though, 'This is the great one!' With that kind of thinking and trying, you're gonna hit the target."

NEW YORK (AP) — Evidence builds that Americans, including professional economists, businessmen and even some government officials, are resigning themselves to a future of rising prices.

Statements and observations by people in every walk of life suggest that, in varying degrees, they believe it is futile to anticipate a return to the 1 and 2 per cent inflation sought in years gone by.

Moreover, they are acting on their premises. Escalator clauses are being built into more contractual agreements, not just between labor and management but in Social Security and life insurance and even home mortgages.

Arthur Burns, who as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board is in as powerful a position relative to inflation as almost any man in America, was quoted in recent weeks as saying that "supply and demand forces in the world economy can swamp anything that the Federal Reserve does to curb inflation."

Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, has conceded his disillusionment with past price restraint efforts and has become more pessimistic about price stability for the immediate future.

"We are going to be continuously confronted with choices between higher prices and shortages," he told the American Bar Association this week. Earlier, he told the Joint Economic Committee, "We have before us a period of a strong tendency to higher prices."

Argus Research Corp., which wholesales much of the economic research and investment advice used by stockbrokers, noted in its latest weekly staff report that:

"The past couple of weeks have been marked by a growing recognition that a relatively high rate of inflation has become a permanent way of life in the United States."

Noting the remarks by Burns and Stein, it added: "The extent to which the durability of relatively rapid inflation has become accepted is the willingness of government officials to 'fess up' to the fact."

"As the ones charged with the maintenance of economic stability, government officials have traditionally been loath to admit publicly that inflation will continue, even though deep in their hearts they know that it will."

First National City Bank, one of the most influential commercial banks in the world, observes in its Monthly Economic letter that the unprecedented rise in borrowing costs is tied to expectations of future inflation.

"The steep rise in short-term interest rates reflects the corresponding climb in inflation expectations," it said, forecasting that "a slowdown may depress rates, but future inflation is the key."

Bidding Quiz

You open One Diamond and partner responds One Spade. What would you bid now with each of the following five hands?

1. ♦KJ7 ♥83 ♦AQ9862 ♠A5
2. ♦KQ85 ♥K6 ♦AKQ873 ♠10
3. ♦6 ♥AQ5 ♦KQJ94 ♠A983
4. ♦AK8 ♥94 ♦AQJ86 ♠A75
5. ♦Q43 ♥AQ8 ♦KQ97 ♠AK6

1. Two spades. This is not the most accurate rebid in the world, but it is the best available. There is a natural aversion to raising immediately with only three trumps, and equally there is an aversion to failing to rebid a good six-card suit.

However, an accurate rebid in diamonds is simply not possible. To leap to three diamonds would constitute a gross exaggeration of values, and at the same time two diamonds would understate the value of the hand. Faced with this dilemma, it is best to raise spades. This is more encouraging than two diamonds and more likely to get partner to bid again. The spade raise will cause partner to look upon his values more favorably.

2. Four spades. It would be wrong to bid either three diamonds, which partner might pass, or three spades, which partner might also pass — though he is less likely to do so. The leap to four is not a closing bid. On the contrary, it states in plain

Reds launch key trip with Cards

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds, currently baseball's hottest club with 30 wins in their last 40 games, open a two week road trip tonight against 1973 nemesis St. Louis.

It's a collision between two clubs who overcame early-season problems to roar back into pennant contention in opposite divisions of the National League.

St. Louis, after setting a club record with a disastrous 5-20 start has bounced from the basement into the Eastern Division lead. The Cards have won five of six games with Cincinnati this season.

In their last meeting, St. Louis staggered the Reds with 31 runs in sweeping a threegame series by scores of 12-4, 11-5 and 8-0.

The Reds have regrouped since dropping 11 games behind Western Division leader Los Angeles and moved to within three games Wednesday night.

The sizzling .750 pace since July 1 has kept pennant hopes alive, but Manager Sparky Anderson says the Reds will have to maintain the torrid tear to win a third division title in four years.

"The team that wins the west will need 100 wins. That means we have to win 31 of our last 46 games," said Anderson as the Reds took a day off Thursday.

Cincinnati sends young Ross Grimsley, 11-6, against Rick Wise, 13-7, tonight with Jack Billingham, 15-8, and Don Gullett, 13-8, to follow Saturday and Sunday.

The Cardinals have lost pitching star Bob Gibson for an indefinite period due to a knee injury. The Cards have since lost three straight games.

Two Reds are on astonishing hitting streaks. Veteran Pete Rose, who is hitting .420 in his last 44 games, remains the National League's leading hitter with a .342 average.

Rookie Dan Driessen, who won't be eligible for the batting title, has hit safely in the last 19 games he's started to raise his average to .345. Driessen won't have the necessary number of plate appearances to be eligible. He has at least two hits in his last eight games.

Anderson has been heartened by the lively batting surge which has lifted the team batting average from a league-low .236 in June to .249.

The Reds move on to Pittsburgh, New York and Chicago to complete the 13-game road swing.

arrival in New York. Donovan was the referee for their bout at Yankee Stadium June 22, 1938, a match that Louis won.

PGA tourney leadership shaken up

CLEVELAND (AP) — Al Geiberger forgot his peanut butter and still matched the competitive course record with a four-under-par 67.

Don Iverson, armed with a tip from Lee Trevino, flashed the same 67. The improbable pair's performances Thursday left all of pro golf's glamor names far behind heading into today's second round of the 55th PGA National Championship at the Canterbury Golf Club.

However, Geiberger, Iverson, and Bob Dickson and Mike Hill, deadlocked for third at 69, all played their rounds early on the hot, steamy day before winds swirled over the 6,852-yard layout.

The skinny Geiberger still munches peanut butter for energy out on the course but confessed, "I forgot the peanut butter and crackers today. Instead, I took a bite of a friend's hot dog on the 16th tee."

"You watch," said U.S. Open champion John Miller, who was in a logjam at 72. "Those guys who shot the good rounds this morning will have trouble tomorrow, if the conditions stay the same."

The forecast, though, called for 60 per cent chance of rain and thunderstorms.

Tom Weiskopf occupied the best spot among the big names. The British Open champion fired a 70, sharing sixth place with former PGA king Ray Floyd, Don Bies, Tony Jacklin, Gibby Gilbert and Bob Brue.

In a large group at par 71 was No. 1 money winner Bruce Crampton. Among those at 72 was Jack Nicklaus.

Unless Nicklaus, Palmer, Trevino and Player turn things around today, the superstars are on the verge of drawing a blank for the 1973 Big Four. This is the last of the major titles.

In the first flight championship, Mrs. Walter Oswald captured top honors by defeating Mrs. Roland Holthouse 2-1 in Thursday's finals. Mrs. Oswald had earlier defeated Mrs. Otis Hess and Mrs. John Aills while Mrs. Holthouse had reached the finals by beating Mrs. Harry Thraikill and Mrs. Sam Parrett. Club pro Tony Capuana said the annual women's golf championship tourney will be played Monday and Tuesday at the Washington Country Club. Mrs. Carl Mason is the defending club champion.

Thomas, Jurgensen scheduled for duty

WASHINGTON (AP) — If running back Duane Thomas could be compared to an expensive automobile that's been in storage a year, to what could quarterback Sonny Jurgensen be compared?

Thomas, who sat out the 1972 National Football League season before being traded to Washington last month, will start his first game in more than a year when the Redskins meet the Denver Broncos tonight in an exhibition game.

Charlie Waller, Redskins offensive backfield coach, says Thomas has made "amazing progress."

"Every day is better than the day before," said Waller. "He's practicing well, he's got a good football mind, it's just a matter of getting enough repetition."

"You just don't put a new Cadillac in the garage for a year and a half, then crank it right up and expect it to run like it did before."

But there was no comment on what could be expected from a so-called antique collector's item—the 38-year-old Jurgensen who will make his first game appearance since last Oct. 29 when he severed his Achilles tendon while playing against the New York Giants.

Jurgensen, who is scheduled to play the second half, is apprehensive, but emphasized "that doesn't mean I don't want to play."

"I would have liked to have had more time, but this is a necessity," he said. Jurgensen was slated to split quarterbacking duties with Bill Kilmer after Sam Wyche, the No. 3 man, suffered a fractured cheekbone in a 17-14 loss to Detroit last Friday.

In NFL action Saturday, Baltimore will be at Atlanta, Buffalo at Green Bay, Philadelphia at Cincinnati, Cleveland at Los Angeles, Chicago at Houston, New Orleans at Miami, the New York Jets take on San Francisco at Tampa, Fla., Dallas is at Oakland, Minnesota hosts Pittsburgh and St. Louis is at San Diego.

The New York Giants are at New England Sunday, and Detroit plays at Kansas City Monday night.

2 Browns guards OKd for action

HIRAM, Ohio (AP)—Cleveland Browns guards John DeMarie and Pete Adams passed X-ray tests at a Cleveland clinic, and the Browns said both should be ready for action this weekend.

A third player, rookie offensive tackle Tom Humphrey, has a fractured thumb but probably will also play, the Browns said. Team trainers said Adams and DeMarie both have sore spots but no broken bones.

The Browns fly to the coast tonight for a Saturday date with the Los Angeles Rams, the second exhibition game of the season. The Browns dropped a 27-16 decision to the San Francisco 49ers Monday.

A final light workout was planned today before the team heads west.

Coach Nick Skorich said there have been no changes in the starting unit, although he hopes to screen a batch of rookies if the game permits.

Last season's quarterback, Mike Phipps, was slated to see action through the first half and into the second, Skorich said.

Perfecta pays off with thumping $3,995

FLORENCE, Ky. (AP) — The only ticket purchased in the newly-introduced Big Perfecta returned $3,995.10 to a better Thursday night at the Latonia Trot.

The bettor had to pick the winning 3-5 ticket in the seventh race to earn a chance at picking the first two horses in the eighth race. No one correctly selected the winning 4-3 ticket in the eighth so the single bettor was awarded the payoff on a 3-5-4-11 basis.

Bondsville won the featured $3,000 conditioned mile pace by 2 1/4 lengths in 2:06 3-5. The winner paid $9.80, $3.20 and $2.20.

The Colts announced Thursday that linebacker Ray May would miss Saturday's game and cornerback Bruce Laird is a doubtful starter. Both have sprained knees. Bert Jones, the Colts' top draft pick from Louisiana State, is expected to play about one half of the game at quarterback.

Pat Sullivan was tapped to start at

North team favored over South tonight

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — A bigger North squad rates a solid favorite to whip the South tonight and take a one-game lead in the Ohio high school All-Star Football Series.

The North has taken the last two contests by one touchdown to deadlock the series at 12 victories each.

Three games have ended in ties in the event that matches the state's top seniors from the previous season.

More than 17,000 will watch the game at Fawcett Stadium and 1,000 more will view it on a statewide television network.

Each side is under the 33-player limit this year.

Dave Migliore of Dover quit and Mike Gayles of Cincinnati-Princeton elected not to play for the South.

The North lost quarterback Tim Starrett of North Canton with an injury in practice last week.

Migliore, Dover's first team Class AAA all-state quarterback, left the South practice last week because he was not being used at that position. He was being groomed as a defensive back instead.

The North's size impresses the South's head coach, Ken Amlin of Dayton-Patterson.

"That North is really big," said Amlin. "We're going to have to run around them, not over them."

Myers hopes to top pass catching mark

WILMINGTON, Ohio (AP) — Cincinnati split end Chip Myers, who overcame two broken arms to blossom into one of pro football's top receivers a year ago, says it was no accident.

The secret is being in the right place at the right time he says.

"The quarterback can depend on me being exactly where he tells me to be. Some receivers get funny notions and stray out of their pattern. If I'm told to break 10 yards, it will be 10 yards," said Myers, who caught a club record 57 passes last season and was named to the Pro Bowl.

"I think I can top that," said Myers, who tied for third in NFL receptions. Saturday night, the Bengals face Harold Jackson of Philadelphia, who topped the NFL with 62 catches last year.

The 28-year-old Myers feels former All-Pro tight end Bob Trumpy and newcomers Charlie Joiner and No. 1 draft choice Isaac Curtis give the Bengals "as good a receiving corps anybody can put together in the league."

"We have two 6-foot-5 guys — Trumpy and myself — who can catch and two speed burners in Joiner and Curtis," said Myers.

"This club isn't that far away, but it's a matter of aggressiveness. We've got the people and the ability. Now it's a matter of confidence. Everything snowballs with a couple wins," he said. A perfectionist, Myers isn't pleased with the Bengals' progress.

quarterback for Atlanta against the Colts. The 1971 Heisman Trophy winner currently is battling veteran Dick Shiner for the starting job.

The Steelers hope to continue last week's rushing success against Minnesota. Against Baltimore, they gained 296 yards rushing with Preston Pearson carrying 10 times for 126 yards. Franco Harris, who provided the bulk of Pittsburgh's ground game last year, gained only 31 yards against the Colts.

Giants' quarterback Randy Johnson completed his last 15 passes last weekend against San Diego and will get a chance to continue the streak Sunday when he is expected to start against New England. The regular season record is 15, held by Len Dawson of Kansas City and Joe Namath of the Jets.

Babe Flossie of Akron-Garfield the North's head coach plans a simpler attack for the Yankees.

"You can run around the field all you want," he said, "but you have to move the ball forward. That's what we intend to do."

Flossie intends to start his son, Ben, at quarterback with Chuck Miller of Sandusky also expected to play at quarterback.

The South has been alternating Art Yaroch of Columbus Watterson and Kirk Lewis of Dayton Wright at quarterback.

The winning squad will remain intact to face the Pennsylvania All-Stars Saturday night, Aug. 18, in the Big 33 game in Hershey, Pa.

Prep grid game to be telecast

The 28th annual Ohio High School North-South All-Star football game will be telecast live from Canton's Fawcett Stadium starting at 8 p.m. tonight by Channels 2, 4 and 5.

Ken Coleman, TV voice of the Boston Red Sox, and Willie Davis, a former Green Bay Packer star, will be handling the play-by-play.

Fayette County feels effect of hefty boom in rubbish

By KIRK ARNOTT
Record-Herald Staff Writer

Fayette County, like the rest of the nation, has experienced shortages this summer, most notably of meat and gasoline. But while some materials and commodities have been scarce in these parts, the county has had a hefty boom in the supply of one thing — trash. Garbage. Refuse.

Call it what you will, there is a lot more of it lying around this summer than in the past. That's because up until a few months ago, a person could burn his trash, reducing it to clouds of smoke and little piles of ashes.

Now, open burning of trash is a no-no, by state law. Fifty-five gallon drums have fallen into disuse. Sales of plastic trash-can liners and metal and plastic garbage cans have increased.

This has meant a great increase in the amount of solid waste to be disposed of. Trash haulers have felt the burden, having to unload their trucks more often and using more time to gather more bundles, bags and cans of garbage.

This refuse increase has had a noticeable effect on the county's landfill operation. There's no real crisis or anything of that nature yet, by any means. But the flow of garbage into the landfill has accelerated, making proper maintenance of the landfill more of a problem.

The landfill began to feel the effects of the stiff no-burning regulations last fall, but not until this summer has the garbage flow increased so rapidly. Roughly one-third more trash is being buried on the landfill this summer than was last year. Many people are setting out two or three times as much garbage for collectors as they did before. And many other people, who burned all their refuse, are now taking it themselves to the landfill.

Lloyd Cartwright Jr., who operates the landfill under a leasing arrangement with the county, says the volume of trash may eventually double, due to the no-burning law. "It creates quite a problem for us," said Cartwright. One fulltime employee and two part-time men are currently operating the landfill, but Cartwright said another full-timer will have to be hired soon.

THE INCREASED volume of garbage has made it necessary to dig more trenches and keep more cover dirt ready at the landfill. And covering one-third more trash than in past years is more time-consuming as well.

That is one reason why trash collectors in the county have agreed to ask their customers to place all garbage at curbside starting Sept. 1. This decreases greatly the time haulers spend loading their trucks, allowing them to cover their routes faster and so to deposit the refuse at the landfill earlier in the day.

The landfill, a 17-acre tract owned by Kenneth Walters, who leases it to the county, was opened three years ago. It had an expected "life span" of up to 10 years. Cartwright says it will probably be adequate only three or four more years now, though.

When this landfill has received all the trash it can hold, what then? Another landfill in the county is a possibility. But more likely is a five-county operation, using two large landfills and more hauling of refuse.

Cartwright says several people have indicated to him that they would like to have landfills on their property.

But Robert Mace, chairman of the Fayette County Board of Commissioners, says there aren't too many good locations left in the county for landfills. The terrain is not suitable in many cases, he adds.

THERE HAVE been several studies made, and various meetings have been held, exploring the possibility of a multi-county arrangement.

Dr. William Covert, county health commissioner, said Pike, Scioto, Pickaway, Ross and Fayette Counties have been involved in discussions about forming a large refuse district. Two large landfill sites have been considered, one in the northern part of the proposed district, the other in the southern part.

The multi-county arrangement be more efficient and economical, Covert said, but large tracts of land would be needed. An acre of landfill is usually figured to be adequate to handle the rubbish produced by 10,000 people in one year. The combined population of the five counties, as of the 1970 census, is 222,808, which would mean that a total of more than 100 acres would be needed to serve the proposed district even five years.

This arrangement, which is still in the planning stages, probably won't be needed for four or five years. The present landfill operations in the other counties appear to be sufficient for about five more years, Covert estimated.

Incineration, another possible alternative, has been all but ruled out as the cost is prohibitive. It would involve not only the incineration of waste itself, but also getting rid of the ashes, cleaning the water used to flush it, and controlling the vapors that would be created.

Recycling and reclamation are still in the future. To make it feasible, a large quantity of solid waste must be gathered in one place. Recycling won't become mandatory until the trash problem approaches crisis proportions, probably.

No matter what happens in the future, there is plenty of garbage in Fayette County and its effects are being felt already.

Tuscarawas County Common Pleas Court Judge Raymond Rice issued the temporary injunction Thursday. Rice set a hearing on a permanent injunction for Aug. 21.

The company sought the order after General representatives said pickets shoved supervisory personnel when they attempted to go to work earlier this week.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Post-Coronary Lease on Life

My husband has recovered from a heart attack. The X-rays and the cardiograms have been normal for almost two years.

Since his attack he is scared to death to do anything, even though the doctor has told him to get back to work, to play, and to exercise.

What more can we do to help him? He is only 46.

Mrs. E. Q., Ohio

Dear Mrs. Q.: A heart attack is a severe physical and emotional blow to anyone, man or woman, at any age.

A young man, particularly, filled with his family responsibilities, is severely injured when a heart attack deprives him of his masculinity and his drive to function normally.

Your husband, as do many other people, often refers back to "the time I had my coronary." Reference to this time indicates that it is a milestone that will forever be remembered by the person whose life was momentarily threatened.

Many who recover from such an attack consider that they have been given a virtual new lease on life. And indeed they have!

You can tell it by the way so many people suddenly give up smoking cigarettes, start to lose weight, and readjust their hectic patterns of daily living.

These are the very same people who, prior to a heart attack, would hardly listen to the advice of their family and friends, and especially the advice of their doctor.

Many people walk on the brink of destruction, toying and gambling with their health until it finally collapses. Then, and only then, will they take stock and consider the valuable possession of health that they almost sacrificed.

In order to have your husband return to full serviceability, it may take the coordinated effort of your doctor, your family, and possibly even a psychologist.

It often is an arduous task, but you must not give up in despair or else the chances are great that he will, despite his complete physical recovery, remain a lifelong emotional cardiac invalid.

It is the opinion of heart specialists everywhere that well-planned exercise and activity is an actual contribution to the recovery of the heart.

Overindulgent rest may be the reverse of what is good in order to get that heart muscle back in tone again.

Doctors today are so aware of the need for emotional rehabilitation in heart cases that they begin a program while the patient is still in the hospital.

An optimistic attitude during convalescence is imperative if the patient's morale is to be sustained.

I have known men and women who have recovered from severe heart attacks who engage in a very humane avocation. They seek out others who are in the early stages of recovery, visit them, and show them the hope that lies in store for them.

Doctors are now able to study the exact level of physical tolerance of every recovered heart patient. In this way they can outline the perfect regime for each individual.

Your husband, with gentle and kind persuasion and understanding, can be induced to take this rightful place in society, without the fear that seems to dominate his life.

Trade is up, exports down

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — "The contribution of world trade to the U.S. economy is the highest of any country in the world," Carl Gerstacker, chairman of the Dow Chemical Co., told a World Trade Conference here. "Our trade total exceeded $100 billion last year and was roughly double that of Japan."

Nevertheless, Gerstacker cautioned, the nation needs desperately to encourage exports in every possible way. "Although our exports were up 13 per cent last year," he said, "imports increased by 22 per cent. World trade is important to the economic well-being of all Americans and we're going to have to work harder to improve our competitive position."

Falcons seen as solution to airport bird problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — The falcon, mascot of the Air Force Academy, is being flight-tested as a predator capable of clearing airport runways of birds that smash into planes.

The principal researcher reviving the ancient art of falconry for the Air Force is The Rev. Edwin Mattingly, a 55-year-old Roman Catholic priest who has been training the birds since his college days in Indiana.

In "Operation Prairie Chicken," Mattingly has been using falcons for two years to clear the rare birds from traditional breeding grounds amid the grass next to a runway at Whiteman Air Force Base, Mo.

Air Force researchers say they are consulting bird-lovers and environmentalists at every step of the experiment. Mattingly said his falcons' claws were dulled and none of the prairie chickens, an endangered species, was killed at Whiteman. But he conceded many probably died because they were flushed from their breeding grounds.

James Rod, an official of the National Audubon Society, said his organization has no objection to use of falcons for clearing out birds that are in plentiful supply. But he promised an investigation of Mattingly's experiment with prairie chickens.

Mattingly said falcons, used for centuries for hunting small game, are a last-resort solution to a problem that annually costs the Air Force $13.5 million in damage to planes.

Three other bases—Ellington in Texas, Vance in Oklahoma and Hill in Utah—are being considered as sites for more falcon experimentation.

Mattingly, who works at the special-weapons section of Kirtland Air Force Base in Albuquerque, was awarded a $29,000 Pentagon research grant to conduct his experiment.

During two experiments in Missouri, Mattingly approached the breeding or

"booming" ground of the prairie chicken with a falcon perched on his arm. At a signal, the bird flew 300 feet into the air before swooping in pursuit of the chickens, which Mattingly flushed out by firing a shotgun or sending in a hunting dog.

The idea was to persuade the approximately 100 prairie chickens that the falcon had established a "territorial prerogative" over the breeding ground the smaller birds had been occupying long before the runway was built.

Once the chickens had retreated beyond the runway, Mattingly summoned the falcon back to his arm with a device designed to simulate the whistles of circling prey.

Pork prices said rising too sharply

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration is voicing concern over the sharply rising cost of pork, but has ruled out trying to halt the increase with a price freeze.

Kenneth Fedor of the Cost of Living Council said in an interview Thursday that some of the increase in pork prices may be attributed to the beef shortage. But that alone does not explain the hikes, he said.

"We are getting more supply, but the price continues to go up," he said, noting that the price of hogs has jumped from $37.31 per hundred pounds in the first week of June to $59.13.

President Nixon lifted the freeze on all food prices except beef on July 18. The beef ceiling will be removed on Sept. 12, and Fedor, director of the council's Office of Food Price Monitoring, said there is no prospect of restoring the freeze on pork prices.

He said the administration feels food prices in general have been advancing too sharply since the freeze ended. And the supermarket price of beef is expected to increase by 10 per cent once the ceiling on beef is lifted, he said.

CHARRED REMAINS—In this charred corner of the children's room was the closet where fire broke out, leaving a family of six homeless. Six-year-old Michael Rhoades, was about to get dressed just before 8 o'clock this morning when he discovered the closet was filled with smoke.

Fire causes heavy loss at Mills Road residence

A fire that started in a clothes closet caused heavy damage to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Rhoades and family, Mills Rd., Friday morning.

The New Holland and Wayne Township fire departments, notified of the fire shortly before 8 a.m., fought the blaze about an hour before extinguishing it.

The house, located at the intersection of Mills and Robinson roads, was badly damaged by the flames. There was considerable loss to the contents of the home as well, including a new living room suite and new clothing for the Rhoades' four children, Michelle, 9, Michael, 6, Yvonne, 4, and Douglas, 2. The house and its contents were insured.

Mrs. Rhoades and the four children were in the house when the fire started, and all escaped without injury.

Gilligan wants Patrol use in strikes

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Gov. John Gilligan indicated Friday he favored legislation to change the Ohio law that prohibits use of the Highway Patrol in labor disputes.

"I don't believe in the law providing special sanctuary or any special privilege to any class or group or any individual," Gilligan said.

Organized labor, Gilligan's biggest backer, has fought movements to remove the restrictions over the years.

Rep. Charles E. Fry, R-75 Springfield, earlier this week blamed Gilligan's ties with labor in part for keeping his bill to eliminate the provision from getting House hearings.

Gilligan termed the charge ridiculous. He noted that when the Republican-controlled legislature rewrote the law two years ago it reinstated the provision.

The issue came up again recently after Gilligan closed the lodge and cabins at Burr Oak State Park because of the violence related to a strike by workers at the lodge, operated by Ohio Inns, Inc.

Gilligan said he took the action because local law enforcement officials advised him they did not have the personnel to handle the situation and he could not send in highway patrolmen.

The Fayette County Sheriff's Department said the cause of the fire was not immediately determined, but that a short in electrical wiring may have caused it.

Mrs. Rhoades said she was on her way to feed the family's rabbits when she told her children to get dressed. Upon opening the closet, Michael Rhoades found it filled with smoke.

Mrs. Rhoades called the Washington C.H. Fire Department, which notified the Wayne Township Fire Department.

THURSDAY, 5:25 p.m.—A car driven by Danny P. Perkins, 20, Mt. Sterling, struck the rear end of one driven by Clifford D. Gunkel, 19, Hillsboro, on U.S. 62, 2 mile south of Mathews Road. Both cars were northbound when Gunkel tried to turn right into a private drive. Perkins drove off the right side of the road and hit the Gunkel car in the right side. Damage to the right side of Gunkel's car and the left side of Perkins' car was heavy. Perkins was charged with failure to maintain assured clear distance.

See world shortage of wheat

LONDON (AP) — The world will not have enough wheat despite this year's record production, experts predict.

They cited several factors Thursday which they said are behind the shortage.

First, the standard of living has increased all over the world and people are eating more bread. Countries in the Far East, which once depended on rice as a staple, have slowly been switching to bread.

Second, the partial ban on U.S. soybean exports has forced breeders of cattle and poultry in other parts of the world to feed their stock with soft wheats and other grain.

Third, a shortage of fishmeal, which is used as an animal feed, is causing more of the same kind of problems. Peru used to provide most of the world's supply from an anchovy catch of 10 million tons a year. Anchovies thrive in cold water and when the cold Humboldt Current switched, as it does every 25 years, it took the anchovy shoals along with it.

The International Wheat Council estimates that world wheat production will total 321 million tons in the current crop year, with world stocks standing at about 27 million tons. This is 1 million tons lower than at the end of June and down from 47½ million tons at the end of June 1972.

Statisticians say world wheat consumption is rising at about 2½ per cent yearly, and droughts in India and Africa are adding to the world shortage. This coupled with world crop failures is sending wheat prices to record levels.

Prices have soared about $20 a ton in Britain in the last month, and deliveries for March 1974 were quoted Wednesday at about $165 a ton. But prices eased Thursday, and March futures closed $1.25 below Wednesday's price.

Wheat futures zoom again at Kansas City

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Wheat farmers and grain experts cocked a sharp eye on the Kansas City Board of Trade today.

September wheat closed Thursday at $4.10 a bushel, the maximum under the 10-cent limit on rise or decline in one day. The limit increased today to 25 cents per bushel.

"This is something no farmer now living has ever seen," said Rod Turnbull, director of public affairs for the Kansas City Board of Trade. "There never before has been such a demand for wheat."

Turnbull said there just wasn't any way to determine what might happen today under the increased trading limit. He said the increase in the limit is a device to stimulate trade, but it doesn't mean sellers would let their wheat go. He said there might be some reduction in the spread between wheat futures and cash wheat. Cash wheat closed Thursday at $4.41 a bushel.

Thursday marked the ninth straight day of bidding at the limit. The ceiling for September futures will be $4.35 today.

Creel Brock, administrator of the Kansas Wheat Commission, said, "The farmers may continue to hold off selling as the price continues to go up. They want all the profit for their product they can get."

Ray Davis of Potter, Neb., president of the National Wheat Growers Association, said he didn't think growers are holding back wheat in hope of further price increase, but he suggested that a box car shortage is part of the problem. He said a lot of wheat that has been sold has not been moved.

Pollution alert lifted

STEBENVILLE, Ohio (AP)—An air pollution alert for the four-county Steubenville area was lifted Thursday after brisk winds swept away a stagnant air mass.

Youth admits role in gruesome death ring

21 murder victims found in Texas

HOUSTON (AP) — Police following leads supplied by a youth who says 27 young men were victims of a homosexual procurement ring dug up two more bodies today, raising the total found so far to 21.

The two new graves were unearthed

near Broadus in San Augustine County about 130 miles northeast of Houston. Two graves were found in the same area late Thursday. Police said all were pointed out to them by Elmer Wayne Henley, 17, who has admitted taking part in the slayings and burials.

Henley told newsmen today that police would find "at least six more bodies buried in the sand dunes near High Island," a beach town east of Galveston. Henley said the bodies found today were those of teen-age boys from the Houston suburb of Pasadena.

If the death toll rises as high as Henley says, it would surpass that of the largest mass murder in U.S. history—the case in which Juan Corona was convicted of slaying 25 itinerant farm

Disclose Laird approved secret Cambodia bombing

WASHINGTON (AP) — While he was Secretary of Defense, Melvin R. Laird personally approved an elaborate plan for keeping secret thousands of B-52 raids against North Vietnamese troop sanctuaries in Cambodia, according to a top secret memo made public Thursday.

The raids, from March 1969 to April 1970 were ordered at a time when the United States was professing to observe the neutrality of the Cambodian government.

The memo linking Laird, now President Nixon's top domestic adviser, to the deliberately camouflaged raids was released by Deputy Defense Secretary William P. Clements Jr. during testimony before the Senate Armed Services Committee.

The document, written by the former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Ret. Army Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, and initiated by Laird, outlines a plan under which simultaneous B-52 strikes would be made in Cambodia and South Vietnam. The strikes in South Vietnam, the memo said, were designed to provide "a resemblance to normal operations thereby providing a credible story for replies to press inquiries."

The memo, dated Nov. 20, 1969, also said other areas would be selected inside South Vietnam, which would not actually be struck. Instead, military record keepers would show each Cambodia mission as having occurred in South Vietnam.

A second set of statistics showing where the bombs actually fell was held by a tiny number of top civilian and military officials with a "need to know."

The Armed Services Committee has spent three weeks investigating why the Defense Department falsely reported that 3,630 B-52 strikes in Cambodia occurred in South Vietnam. Sen. Harold E. Hughes, D-Iowa, said, "This is the first indication I've had on paper that there were orders to enter false information in the record."

Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, the current chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said similar reporting methods were used as far back as 1966 and 1967 under the Johnson administration.

Testifying before the committee, Moorer released a second memo indicating former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara approved a similar method to the one approved by Laird and intended to lead the press astray.

That memo concerned 1967 B52 strikes in Laos.

The committee adjourned the hearings, indicating Laird may be called to testify next month.

'Multitude of sins' at Lucasville?

By DEAN SCHOTT
Associated Press Writer
LUCASVILLE, Ohio (AP)—A state senator from Cincinnati called the Southern Ohio Correctional Facility's problems a "multitude of sins" Thursday after he and four other members of a citizens' task force toured the tense prison.

After the 3½-hour tour through the maximum-security facility, state Sen. William F. Bowen, D-9 Cincinnati, said, "We do have some very serious problems. It's not just the inmates, the guards or the administration. It's a multitude of sins."

The five members of the Governor's Task Force on Criminal Justice visited the state's largest prison to investigate complaints of harsh security measures following the deaths of two guards July 24.

The group plans to make recommendations to Gov. John Gilligan.

REVEALS MURDER SCENE—Elmer Wayne Henley, 17, waits in a police car after showing Houston police the site where multiple murder victims were buried in the southwest part of the city. Henley reportedly shot the man responsible for the murders, reportedly numbering at least 21.

Agnew papers not turned over

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has retired to a desert resort for a long weekend, leaving behind the question of whether he will turn over his financial records to federal prosecutors probing political corruption in Maryland.

Agnew left Washington for Palm Springs, Calif., Thursday after reportedly being granted an indefinite extension on the prosecutors' request for the documents while his lawyers study the possibility of claiming immunity. Jay H. Topkis, one of Agnew's attorneys, said he would be in touch with the prosecutors next week.

Agnew was expected to return to Washington early next week.

Meanwhile, a federal grand jury in Baltimore, which since January has been investigating political kickbacks, heard several witnesses. Federal officials refused to say if the testimony involved Agnew.

The Vice President told a news conference Wednesday he has "absolutely nothing to hide" from the investigators, labeling as "damn lies" charges that he accepted political payoffs.

He said he would "make available at the appropriate time and in the appropriate way to the appropriate authorities" whatever records are needed, but added that "unprecedented constitutional questions" would have to be considered.

Never before has any president or vice president been involved in a federal criminal investigation while in office.

Agnew was notified Aug. 2 that he was under investigation for bribery, extortion, conspiracy and tax violations. A letter from U.S. Atty. George Beall requested Agnew's financial and tax records dating back to the beginning of his two year term as governor of Maryland in 1967. Beall had asked Agnew to turn over the documents by 2 p.m. Thursday.

The White House has declined any further discussion of Agnew's legal problems, saying the vice president "addressed himself quite forthrightly and quite directly" to the matter. Deputy White House Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren repeated that "the President has confidence in the vice president and the fact of the investigation does not change that."

'Multitude of sins' at Lucasville?

Following a discussions with about 150 of the more than 1,000 prisoners, the group drew these conclusions:

—Inmates were nude from four to seven days during a shakedown for weapons. Supt. W. J. Whealon told the committee that the inmates were without clothing for no more than 24 hours.

—Personal articles, including soap, prescription eyeglasses, toothbrushes and pictures were confiscated from the inmates.

—Inmates remained in their cells around the clock without any outside activities or exercise.

Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Judge Bernard Friedman said he found "a great deal of tension" among the inmates during the tour of two cell blocks, including one called "The Hole," used for solitary confinement.

Cleveland attorney Gerald Messerman said, "The entire situation is a travesty. I have a hard time envisioning any crime as grotesque as this situation."

Bowen said, "There's been a lot of frustration among the corrections officers, who have transferred it to the inmates." He attributed the feeling of the guards to efforts by two labor groups to organize the officers.

Dr. Harry Allen of Ohio State University called the corrections officers "green," adding that 80 per cent had no previous experience for the job. He said the number of guards should be increased and their training improved.

The group called for a restoration of normal activity as the prison.

Messerman said, "The doors must be opened, inmates put to work, and vocational facilities must be completed."

Ysabel Rennie of Columbus was the fifth member of the group.

workers in Yuba City, Calif. The victims' bodies were found in the spring of 1971. Corona, 39, is in prison.

Explaining to newsmen why he has pointed out the graves, Henley told newsmen: "I felt I owed it to their parents to let them know what happened to them." He did not name the newly found victims and declined to answer some questions, saying the answers were between him and police.

Police said Henley, who at first said he had killed only Dean Corll, 33, the man he accused of the slayings, changed his statement Thursday and told police he and another youth had helped lure young boys to Corll for sex parties that led to torture and death.

Police said Henley told them that he and David Brooks, 18, of Houston, were given $5 to $10 a head for bringing the boys to homosexual parties at Corll's Pasadena home.

Police said Brooks was due to lead them to graves at High Island later today and would be arraigned on murder charges.

In locating the graves Thursday night, Henley told officers: "Here's some I got for Dean. He raped them, killed them, and brought them out here to bury them."

The first 17 bodies were unearthed at a boat storage stall in southwest Houston.

Houston Police Lt. Breck Porter said Henley told him that the victims had been killed over a three-year period.

Police said the case unfolded early Wednesday morning when Henley telephoned them and said he had killed Corll in self-defense at Corll's suburban Pasadena, Tex., home because Corll threatened to kill Henley and two other youths after an all-night sex and paint-spray sniffing party.

Henley told officers that Corll had killed other persons and buried them in the boat stall he had rented for the past three years. But police said Henley then told them he had participated in the sex slayings. Authorities said Henley implicated another 18-year-old Houston youth who has been taken into custody and is being held on suspicion of murder. Police said he was expected to sign a written statement today.

Some of the 17 bodies recovered by jail trustees from the 20-unit boat storage facility were wrapped in plastic bags and all had been covered with lime.

Virtually the entire floor of the stall was dug up, with depths ranging from two to six feet. Many of the corpses were stacked on top of each other with a layer of dirt in between.

San Augustine County Sheriff John Hoyt said the two bodies found near Lake Sam Rayburn were covered in lime and wrapped in plastic. He said authorities were certain they would find at least one more body at the site.

Positive identification of the bodies was not made pending autopsies, although some evidence and comparison of missing persons lists gave officers a few clues.

Fancy names hike beef prices; bread on way up

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Some Ohio grocers may be beating the high cost of beef by slapping fancy names and fancy prices on the same old cuts of beef, warns a consumer protection advocate.

Jack Smith, former chairman of the Columbus Consumer Protection Commission and owner of a freezer meat concern said Thursday meat shoppers should beware of "nonsense" labels such as "backyard steaks" or "cookout steaks." They're probably just cheap cuts of meat renamed to be eligible for top ceiling prices as "specialty" items, he said.

Another misnomer is "Boston Roll," he said, which is hamburger covered with netting and sold as a roast.

"You could probably call it 'wheelbarrow steak' and get $4 a pound for it," said Dahl Baer, meat purchaser for a Columbus food chain.

Baer said if mislabeling were going on at all, it was in the smaller stores which he claimed were not being watched as closely by the Internal Revenue Service for price guideline violations.

Repricing items under different labels, or increasing the prices of items not covered by the price ceiling were at least two ways grocery stores were making up for beef sale losses, said one food industry official.

He noted, however, that some stores were buying meat wholesale at skyhigh prices, then selling it at a loss just to keep customers coming in to buy other food.

"The competition for meat is such that some stores are taking enormous losses just to have beef on the shelves," he said.

Many stores are buying cattle directly and having them custom slaughtered to insure at least some beef for their customers, said E. L. Alberson, of Dinner Bell Meats Inc., of Defiance.

"We can't afford to slaughter for our own accounts, so we've been slaughtering for individuals and stores," he said. "They've all been doing it. Even the chain stores."

Bill Decker, president of Val Decker Packing Co., Columbus, said the firm had slaughtered some cattle for Super Value stores, of Xenia.

A spokesman for the Ohio feedlot at London confirmed the store had arranged for purchase of 1,500 cattle at $60 a hundredweight, even though most packing companies stopped buying cattle at $48 because of the profit loss.

An official at Super Value said the corporation had arranged financing for the cattle on behalf of some of its independent stores.

He had "no comment" when asked how the stores could turn a profit on beef bought at that price.

Elberson said the price of beef could increase one-third or more when the price ceiling is lifted Sept. 12.

"When you remember the price of pork went up 33 per cent after the price freeze, you have to think beef will go up that much or more," he said.

A spokesman for Kroger Foods in Cleveland predicted a 20 per cent increase.

Stores throughout Ohio have reported selling Canadian beef, often at 25 and 30 cents per pound higher than domestic beef.

Checks at other stores revealed beef supplies 50-95 per cent gone. Some major chain stores reported "adequate supplies" through this week, but admitted they were trying to limit customer purchases.

Meanwhile, bread prices rose, keeping pace with increases in wheat and flour prices.

Some breads rose one to four cents in price last Monday, with the higher prices generally on variety breads.

Kroger, Taystee and Pennington breads were among those expected to go up in price next Monday.

Grocers blame the increases on a $7.26 to $13.60 jump in price for 100 pounds of flour since last year, and nearly three-fold hike in hard costs.

Wheat prices hit record highs this week at exchanges in Chicago, Minneapolis and Kansas City.

The American Baker's Association sent a telegram to President Nixon this week asking for federal control of wheat exports. The bakers warned that if there are no controls, bread will "disappear" in most of the United States by next June.

Reds fall back at Phnom Penh

PHNOM PENH (AP) — The Cambodian command claimed "brilliant successes" on all fronts today and said its troops had reopened the highway to Neak Luong, the naval base on the Mekong River 32 miles southeast of Phnom Penh.

The command also said government troops had advanced southwest of the capital.

A communique said government forces from Phnom Penh and Neak Luong linked up Thursday at Dei Doh, 26 miles southeast of Phnom Penh. But a newsman was stopped at a roadblock 13 miles from the capital and told Communist troops were still in the area.

Neak Luong, which was bombed by mistake by a U.S. B52 Monday, is the government's chief base on the Mekong River between Phnom Penh and the South Vietnamese border. The highway to the city has been cut by the Communist-led insurgents since April.

The highway, Route 1, goes on through insurgent territory to the South Vietnamese border.

The insurgents apparently fell back and let the government forces through. Col. Am Rong, the chief spokesman for the Cambodian command, reported only light resistance and few government casualties.

Heavy U.S. bombing continued around the clock, and American fighter-bombers crossed over Phnom Penh almost constantly. Amid the noise of the bomb blasts, U. S. Ambassador C. Emory Swank went to the Phnom Penh airport for a ceremony delivering the first of eight C123 transport planes being given President Lon Nol's government before the U.S. bombing stops on Aug. 15.

Gasoline freeze to be extended

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Cost of Living Council announced today that the price freeze on gasoline and other petroleum products will be extended an additional week, until Aug. 19.

The freeze is scheduled to be lifted from the rest of the economy on Monday.

Council Director John T. Dunlop said the extension of the freeze on petroleum products is to give the council additional time to prepare final regulations for the petroleum industry.

Goodyear denies federal charges

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The world's largest tire manufacturer, The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., says it believes there is no foundation for federal charges the firm tried to monopolize the tire market.

"We know of no facts which justify this litigation," the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. said in a statement released after the government filed U.S. District Court suits charging Goodyear and the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. with the attempted takeover of the $2 billion consumer tire industry.

"We believe this complaint is without any merit whatsoever," the Goodyear statement said.

Goodyear and Firestone, the next largest tire manufacturing concern in the world, were named in separate suits, and the suits did not include charges the two conspired in any way to control the market.

Special bombing session rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger has refused to call a special Supreme Court term to consider the U.S. bombing of Cambodia, but opponents of the bombing are expected to make another attempt to gain the court's attention.

Burger refused the request Thursday from American Civil Liberties Union Foundation lawyers acting on behalf of Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D.N.Y., and three Air Force officers.

Less than two hours after the request was filed, Burger wrote "denied" across the petition, a court spokesman said. It was not known whether the chief justice would issue a written opinion.

A spokesman for Rep. Holtzman said the lawyers are considering a barrage of follow-up petitions in an attempt to get the administration to stop the bombing before Wednesday, when the President has said he will obey a congressional mandate to halt the air attacks.

Burger gave no indication whether he had conducted a poll of the other court members before denying the petition addressed to him.

Thursday's action marked the fourth time in two weeks the issue had been before the court. The tangled path the case has followed includes an attack by Justice William O. Douglas on the conduct of his colleagues.

Last month, Rep. Holtzman won an order in a U.S. District Court in New York to stop the bombing. That order was quickly blocked by the circuit court pending a hearing that was held Wednesday.

Not content to wait for that hearing, the bombing opponents went to Justice Thurgood Marshall last week. Marshall refused to act alone.

They then went to Douglas. Last Saturday morning, Douglas issued an order giving new life to the original court order and, in effect, ordering a halt to the bombing.

That order stood less than seven hours. Acting on a government motion, Marshall ordered the same district court order stayed, thus okaying the bombing which had continued unabated. Marshall noted that his action had the agreement of the other seven justices.

Douglas in his dissent, accused his fellow justices of taking an illegal short cut to overrule him. He contended that the law does not permit a single justice to overrule another.

Woman dying of bone cancer has final party for friends

REDWOOD CITY (AP) — Ruth Hoffman is hosting an open house Saturday for her family and friends. And she has ordered doctors to keep her alive until the party's over.

Ruth is dying of bone cancer.

"After that I don't care. I'll be ready," she said Thursday in an interview from her Sequoia Hospital bed. "We all have to die. I'm a Christian. I have hopes of seeing my mother and others up there."

"I've had a lot of tribulations, but I don't let them get me down," she said. "The closer one lives to God the happier they're going to be some day. That's my attitude."

Ruth's open house and party will be in Room 119 and the corridor outside in Sequoia Hospital where she learned the week before Mother's Day her illness would be terminal.

Sensing that her time was near, Mrs. Hoffman, 57, first started planning a family reunion. But, she said many of her friends who have visited during her 14 weeks in the hospital also wanted to be invited.

"So I decided. Make it an open house for all who want to come," she explained.

Cancer's attack on Mrs. Hoffman started in 1971. She had a breast removed but that did not halt the spread of cancer.

"I went into the hospital in May, the week before Mother's Day," she said. "I asked the doctors to tell me the truth. They did. They told me I had bone cancer, from my head to my knees."

"They told me there was no chance to recover."

"I was prepared."

Mrs. Hoffman worked for 20 years as

Judge studies 2 Watergate suits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal Judge John J. Sirica had two court actions raising unresolved constitutional issues before him today. Both ask him to order President Nixon to obey subpoenas demanding White House tapes and documents related to the Watergate investigations.

The Senate Watergate committee filed a civil suit Thursday in U.S. District Court and asked Sirica to speed up the timetable for responses in order to bring about a decision as soon as possible.

Sirica took no immediate action on the request that he require the White House to respond within 20 days rather than the 60 usually given.

The committee went to court just two days after lawyers for the President asked Sirica to dismiss special a quality assurance tester at Varian Associates, a Palo Alto electronics manufacturer.

"It's nice to know that my medical coverage is paying all the bills," she said. "But it all expires by the end of this year."

"I want to die before that time comes. I don't want to be a burden for any of my family."

Army spying program rescinded

HEIDELBERG, Germany (AP) — The U.S. Army's European headquarters has ordered the 8th Infantry Division to stop a special antidissent program that the press found out about.

The Army command, which oversees 200,000 American troops in West Germany, also denied reports that it is intensifying intelligence operations to spy on the so-called "GI underground."

"This headquarters is not directing an intensified military counterintelligence program against underground activities within the United States Army, Europe," a statement said Thursday.

The command refused to say whether it is continuing surveillance and wiretapping to check on civilian and military dissidents. Reports of such surveillance have touched off criticism in Washington and among West Germans.

The 8th Infantry program, outlined in a directive dated July 23, was aimed at both military personnel and "civilian extremists." It directed soldiers to report the name, rank, unit and race of any persons involved in such "indicators of dissidence" as complaining to congressmen and the news media and attending "extremist meetings" outside Army premises.

The headquarters said the directive was rescinded because "guidance on dissent contained in Army regulations is considered sufficient and soldier dissent within the command is presently at a very low level."

"The major concern with commanders is with unlawful acts such as espionage and sabotage to include bombing, arson and damage to equipment."

Police still seek red-eyed monster

OVERLIN, Ohio (AP)—Reports of a red-eyed, gorilla-like monster prowling the woods along the Lorain-Ashtand county line have been undimmed by another monster hoax, according to Oberlin police.

A group of Oberlin coon hunters checked into the Oberlin police station earlier this month with a story of a prosecutor Archibald Cox's request that the judge order Nixon to turn over tapes of nine presidential conversations.

Cox and the Senate committee issued subpoenas July 23. Three days later Nixon notified all parties that he believed that to relinquish the material would violate the constitutional doctrine of separation of powers.

In a supporting brief Tuesday, White House lawyers argued that the courts and the presidency are co-equal branches of government under the Constitution and therefore, the courts cannot compel the President to obey their orders.

To do so, it said "would effectively destroy the status of the executive branch as an equal and coordinate branch of government."

Shower and thundershower activity can be expected to increase in Ohio during the day with peak activity during the late afternoon and evening hours. The National Weather Service reports.

Skies continued partly cloudy over the state through the night with temperatures at dawn ranging in the upper 60s and lower 70s. Showers were reported around the state during the night although most did not produce much more than a brief sprinkle. There were some isolated thundershowers.

A cold front across lower Michigan to the mid Mississippi Valley continues to move slowly southeastward and will probably push into northwest Ohio tonight and work its way east tonight and Saturday.

This will result in considerable cloudiness today with showers and thundershowers likely. Saturday will be a little cooler and the air a little drier with the chance of showers ending by Saturday night.

A chance of showers about Tuesday. Highs Sunday through Tuesday in the 80s. Lows in the 60s.

Caesar's Creek second-guessing nixed by Brown

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Ohio Atty. Gen. William Brown said Thursday he will not second guess any court decision on the feasibility of building dams on the east fork of the Little Miami River and Caesar's Creek.

"If it is shown that the environmental damage will be minimal or nothing and the greater weight of evidence is that Ohioans will benefit more from completion of the projects, I am sure the court will rule they should be finished," he said.

Ohio has brought a series of injunctions against the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers for violating federal statutes.

A hearing on a Brown motion for a temporary injunction against the projects is scheduled Monday in federal district court here.

FHA authority restored to Oct. 1

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon signed legislation today restoring FHA's authority to insure mortgage loans on single and multifamily dwellings. The interest ceiling was raised to 7½ per cent.

The authority had lapsed on June 30 when Congress failed to complete action on housing legislation. The stop-gap measure Nixon signed restores the Federal Housing Administration authority until Oct. 1 while Congress tries to finish work on the broad bill and extend the authority longer.

Secretary James P. Lynn of Housing and Urban Development had announced on July 15 plans to raise the interest ceilings from 7 per cent to 7½ on July 5.

OVERLIN, Ohio (AP)—Reports of a red-eyed, gorilla-like monster prowling the woods along the Lorain-Ashtand county line have been undimmed by another monster hoax, according to Oberlin police.

To do so, it said "would effectively destroy the status of the executive branch as an equal and coordinate branch of government."

The committee had issued two subpoenas, one demanding tapes of five presidential conversations and the other, documents relating to the 1972 presidential campaign from the files of 25 present and former White House and Nixon campaign aides.

The committee suit called the President's refusal to obey its subpoenas "unlawful, unwarranted and in breach of his legal duty."

It claimed that when the President permitted former aides to testify before the committee on the substance of the taped conversations he had waived any claim of executive privilege.

Cox had made a similar argument and the President's brief rejected it, claiming the President's authority to say the material was privileged was undiminished.

Stock list down again

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market slipped below an important psychological mark today as domestic banks began to raise their prime lending rates another ¼ per cent and the dollar rebounded sharply in Europe.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 7.07 at 894.42. On the New York stock exchange 674 issues lost ground while 348 gained among 1,424 traded. Trading was slow.

For the first time since July 17, the Dow blue-chip indicator dropped below the 900 mark. Some brokers said this would have psychological impact on investors, perhaps sparking a selloff.

Westinghouse, off ¾ to 33¾, and W. R. Grace, off ½ to 22¾, were active also. Colgate Palmolive, after a 39,000-share block, fell ¼ to 32¾.

Old memo bares bombing policy

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A secret Pentagon memorandum, unveiled more than 6 years after it was written, provides a glimpse of the extremely tight control civilian officials exerted over the air war in Indochina.

Many military officers who served in World War II and Korea contended throughout the Indochina war that this degree of control was unprecedented.

The 1967 memorandum, made public by Deputy Secretary of Defense William P. Clements Jr. Thursday, lends support to claims by veteran air officers that civilian authorities right up to the White House called the important shots throughout the air war.

The Pentagon declassified the memo to show that a policy of covering up politically sensitive bombing operations in supposedly neutral nations adjoining South Vietnam had its roots in the Johnson administration.

The document, dated Feb. 23, 1967, deals with delegation of authority to the Joint Chiefs of Staff for B52 bombing strikes against targets in Laos.

This authority was subject to several key limitations.

After the military planners decided what targets they thought should be hit, they messaged their recommendations to Washington.

There the recommendations had to be reviewed by the State Department and the White House staff "sufficiently in advance of scheduled execution to permit effective deferral and/or veto action when appropriate," the memo directed.

The U.S. embassy in Vientiane, the Laotian capitol, also had to approve the strikes.

The same kinds of restrictions were instituted for the bombing of North Vietnam, starting in February 1965.

Not only were specific targets approved or disapproved at the White House, the State Department and the Pentagon, but civilian officials even directed what kind of bombs and other weapons could be used, what routes the bombers could take to certain targets, and other operational details normally left to military experts.

As one long-time Pentagon official put it, the bombing was used as a political instrument, designed in hopes of prodding North Vietnam into a negotiated settlement of the war.

Top aides join with President at Camp David

CAMP DAVID, MD., (AP) — President Nixon has gathered a trio of top aides for mountaintop consultations as he prepares his Watergate statement.

Joining Nixon Thursday in the seclusion of Camp David were presidential assistants Alexander M. Haig, Jr., and Ronald L. Ziegler. One of the top White House speech writers, Raymond K. Price, had come to the wooded compound with the President on Wednesday.

Aides said Nixon would spend the weekend working on his response to the latest Watergate developments. That response is expected to come about the middle of next week in the form of a nationally televised speech and a detailed "white paper" giving a point-by-point rebuttal of charges leveled against Nixon and his administration.

Also with the President are Mrs. Nixon and daughter Tricia Cox. Their other daughter and son-in-law, Julie and David Eisenhower, came to Camp David for dinner Thursday but did not spend the night.

Man gives $1 million to government

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Executors of the estate of Robert Hunter McIntosh, who wanted to show "appreciation for my country," were to fulfill his last will and testament today by turning over more than $1 million to the U.S. government.

U.S. Treasurer Romana Banuelos was to fly here to accept the $1,071,400.97 inheritance from McIntosh, who lived most of his life off stock investments.

McIntosh, of nearby Winter Park, Fla., died April 16, 1972, leaving a will stipulating that "after provisions for the payment of any income and estate taxes has been made, the rest, residue and remainder of my estate, I bequeath to the United States of America and request my executor to accompany delivery of the bequest by an appropriate letter stating forth my appreciation for my country."

Orlando broker Hugh Robinson said McIntosh owned about 150 stocks, mostly in oil companies and utilities, in blocks of 10 to 20 shares.

Robinson said McIntosh was a conservative market player who "insisted on quality stocks." And friends said McIntosh, a widower and childless, also led a conservative life.

Navy chief tells Scouts of ideals

MORRIS STATE PARK, Pa. (AP) — Navy Secretary John W. Warner told 40,000 Boy Scouts at the dramatic finale of their 1973 National Jamboree that a troubled America today "is swinging back to the ideals and principles for which scouting stands."

"These are duty, honor, God and country," he said Thursday night before the scouts officially ended their week of fun by lighting up the dark night with flickering candles to symbolize the brotherhood of man.

Warner, himself an Eagle scout,

said: "Scouts always go to the top. Some day a boy at this Jamboree will be President of the United States."

It was the first of eight Jamborees, beginning in 1950, that didn't have a visit from the President. The White House had never turned down this year's invitation, a scout spokesman said, and all day there was speculation that President Nixon would appear.

Before the mammoth fireworks show, the scouts honored Ernie Banks, Chicago Cubs veteran first baseman, with its highest award, the Silver Buffalo.

An attack on noise

For the first time, the federal government has taken concrete action to do something about a widely recognized problem: noise pollution.

Its proposed rules for curbing the noise made by big interstate trucks, couples with general outlines of a plan to quiet planes and airports, are an important milestone.

That characterization was offered at a press conference by Alvin F. Meyer, head of the noise control office of the Environmental Protection Agency. Happily, he and his associates show signs of intending to make this the first of several milestones on the road toward control of what Meyer rightly calls a "major national environmental problem."

For years the common view was that, while noise was evidently on the increase in our mechanized society, this was a nuisance to be borne. It is far more than a nuisance. Excessive noise may have grave psychological and physiological effects.

Nor are these effects felt only by a relative handful of Americans. An EPA official declared, for example, that some 16 million of us are "severely impacted by aircraft noise."

Thus it is good to know that the agency proposes several actions to curb aircraft noise: lower permissible noise levels on new planes, regulations to control and reduce noise from existing aircraft, the setting of cumulative airport noise levels, and so forth. These proposals are the first moves to implement last year's Noise Control Act.

The sooner this and other pertinent actions are taken, the sooner we will bring under control a problem which greatly detracts from the quality of life in our country.

The invasion of privacy

WASHINGTON — As Congress departed, intent like a flustered housewife on a long-promised vacation, so much was swept under the rug. While a beginning was made on reform of campaign spending in other areas where recent shocks have shown any urgent need for congressional action, the rule was to put it off to an indefinite future.

First and foremost is the invasion of privacy by bugging. The practice has proliferated at a fantastic rate, not only in government at every level but with private eyes and snoopers using with impunity the latest and most-sensitive electronic devices.

Capable of penetrating solid walls, they leave not a shred of privacy to unsuspecting individuals.

The revelation that President Nixon had secretly taped the conversations of every visitor to his office, from heads of state to Watergate conspirators, was a shattering example of the practice. But, quite apart from government tapes and taps, the way this insidious surveillance has spread through the channels of law enforcement is even more alarming.

IN A CASE in Federal District Court here where the government pressed a perjury-conspiracy charge with secret tapes made by an informer, Judge Gerhard A. Gesell spoke out with characteristic forthrightness. Nothing in the Constitution nor in present law prohibits this practice, Gesell noted.

Kids turn to games of strategy

Sen. Lowell Weicker, tangling with Bob Haldeman in the Watergate hearings, seemed to resent that the White House was troubled in the later 1960s over the possibility that foreign influences were behind the demonstrations organized by the New Left. I can't believe that Weicker's outburst against Haldeman really represents his point of view.

There may not have been any Moscow-directed conspiracy to disrupt our election processes, but the contagion of the Maoist-Che Guevara philosophy throughout the Sixties was obvious. It would not have been surprising to discover at the very least a conspiracy pitched toward spreading Maoist and Guevarist literature, and Richard Nixon's team would have been derelict if it had failed to respond to the situation.

The means chosen by the White House to combat the demonstrations were, of course, something else again. Weicker is right when he expresses his disgust with the things done in the name of better plumbing.

But the Watergate investigations will have done this nation a palpable harm if people are to be left with the idea that there was nothing to worry about in the mood of the Sixties. The period itself was fully as stupid as the Watergate burglaries, buggings and blunders.

I WAS APPALLED, in talking to high school and college students in the late Sixties, to discover that strategic concerns about the world balance of power meant absolutely nothing to them. History had no lessons to impart. The struggle between two opposed philosophies of life to dominate strong points on the globe did not matter.

The Vietnam War was bad not because it was fought stupidly but because it was fought at all. The only thing of importance connected with geography was ecology. Wars would never happen again simply because they were morally outrageous, as all possible participants could surely be counted on to see.

Such an attitude, if continued throughout the Seventies, can have only one end: the surrender of the United States to any coalition of new barbarians that cares to take us on.

Who is going to save us? Maybe the inventors of popular games will have something to do with it. On any rainy day the eighth and ninth grade boys in my neighborhood get together to play some of the new games of strategy. The most popular is the one called Risk. Right behind this is another called Diplomacy.

The objective of Risk is to conquer the world; the objective of Diplomacy is to take over Europe by a combination of behind-the-scenes maneuvering, warlike bluffs and battles whenever necessary.

THE SIXTIES would have deemed such games immoral. But they call attention to realities. One reality of the game called Risk is that if you don't keep your armaments up to snuff, then some Genghis Khan will overrun you.

Another reality is that the possession of certain strong points is needed if you are to keep your flanks from being turned. The cleverest kids get the main ideas quickly. They will not be fooled in later life into believing that it doesn't matter who controls the Panama Canal or the straits at Singapore or the air approaches to the industrial Northeast of the U.S.

A new publication, Strategic Review, with the perspicacious Maj. Gen. Thomas A. Lane in charge of its editorial content, has just been started by the U.S. Strategic Institute in Washington, D.C. Among the publication's directors are retired Admiral John S. McCain Jr., formerly chief of our naval forces in the Pacific, and retired Gen. Bruce K. Holloway, who was until recently the boss of our Strategic Air Command.

If the kids who grew up in the benighted Sixties fail to rally to Strategic Review, editor Tom Lane will have to scrape along with older readers until the 15-year-old Risk and Diplomacy players reach maturity.

But that won't be long in coming: I hardly know a 15-year-old today who doesn't have more sense than lots of the kids who are now in their early 20s.

WINDHAM, Ohio (AP) — Windham police said today three men were arrested late Wednesday night during a disturbance at a bar here.

Police said they were called to quiet a disturbance at the Club 303 around 11 p.m., and arrested three men. Trouble started again at 1 a.m. and Windham police said over 40 shots fired by officers from nine law enforcement agencies were required to quell the trouble.

Dear Abby:

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Should 'other woman' go to daughter's wedding?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been separated for over a year. He has been living all this time with the woman he left me for after 26 years of marriage.

My husband is 60, she is 46, and I am 58. I knew he had been seeing her, but I ignored it, hoping he'd get over her.

Our daughter is getting married soon. She wants a small garden wedding with a few close friends and relatives. We were once a very happy family and my daughter wants her father at her wedding.

I hear he is planning on bringing this other woman to the wedding. I've never seen her, but friends say she is the clinging, loud, possessive type.

I have not been in communication with him since he left me, so there is no way I can ask him not to bring his lady friend to the wedding. If he brings her, how far must my good manners be stretched? Unfortunately, I still care for him, but I don't want to play the role of the poor rejected wife.

DISTRESSED IN N.J.

DEAR DISTRESSED: If your daughter wants her father to attend her wedding, she should, without any prompting, ask to come alone. If he is as much a gentleman as you are a lady, he'll not insist on bringing his friend with him. If he does, and your daughter makes her welcome, feeling as you do, you have a right to stay away, and I wouldn't blame you. Your daughter should see to it that your feelings are protected and if she doesn't, she will have made the choice.

DEAR ABBY: Seymour and I went together for about a year. We declared our love for each other and talked about marriage. We fought a lot over trivial things. It was one of those off-again, on-again romances from the start.

Last month, in anticipation of his birthday which is next week, I bought him a silver wine goblet and had both our names engraved on it. Well, we just had a terrible fight and broke up for good. Seymour asked me to return all the gifts he'd given me, but I refused.

Abby, since I bought the goblet for Seymour I think I should give it to him anyway. My friends say I shouldn't. What do you say?

NOT SURE

DEAR NOT: If you give Seymour the goblet anyway, he will think you want the romance to be on again. (Do you?) "To thine own self be true."

DEAR ABBY: I am an adult and I want to change my WHOLE name. I never liked my given name. It is confusing inasmuch as it's used for both males and females. My family name is very long and difficult to spell and pronounce, and even more difficult to remember.

What is the procedure? Does it cost anything? How long does it take? Whom do I have to see, and where is that person (or office) located? Thank you.

I.M. SERIOUS
DEAR SERIOUS: The procedure is a legal one, so see a lawyer. You should have no difficulty changing your WHOLE name for the above mentioned reasons.

David and Abigail

And when Abigail saw David, she hasted, and lighted off the ass, and fell before David. . . and bowed herself to the ground. —Samuel: 25-23

The enmity between King Saul and David, the young shepherd, continued for many years. Three times Saul attempted to kill his erstwhile friend and three times he failed. Finally to escape him, David went into the wilderness of Maon where dwelt an immensely wealthy man called Nabal. David sent messengers to him asking hospitality but Nabal dismissed them with evil churlishness. David, enraged, set out with his men to avenge the insult but Abigail, Nabal's beautiful wife, saw him coming and, with her servants bearing food, wine and gifts, went to meet him. She pleaded with David to shed no blood and he, touched by her plea, put up his sword. Ten days later Nabal died and David made Abigail his wife.

Indian religion hinges on natural harmony

AP Religion Writer
"If you shoot the eagle, you are shooting yourself."

So said a learned, old Indian sage, Black Elk, in confiding to a university professor the religious views of the Oglala Sioux.

It is an outlook that links together all reality—thought, objects, creatures, deeds and environment—each as living, influential parts of the other and all reflecting their supreme spiritual source.

This unifying perspective, once dismissed as primitive in white society but now harmonizing even with modern science and ecological concerns, is getting increasing attention in theological studies in this country.

Unlike other western cultures, "American Indian traditions generally do not fragmentize experience into mutually exclusive kinds of dichotomies," says Dr. Joseph Epes Brown, a University of Montana expert on beliefs of Indians.

Rather, they "stress modes of inter-relatedness across categories of meaning, never losing sight of an ultimate wholeness," he told a recent colloquium sponsored by the Menil foundation in Houston, Texas.

To Indians, the supernatural is fused with the natural, matter with energy, analyses with intuition, action with meaning, symbols with forces they convey, human life with animal, vegetable and mineral life, the inanimate with the animate.

"The Indian sees that all that exists is animate, each form in its own special way, so that even rocks have a life of their own and are believed to be able to talk under certain conditions," Brown said.

"The total world of experience is seen as infused with the sacred."

Dr. Brown, a religious historian and anthropologist who has specialized on the spiritual legacy of American Indians, is one of few white scholars with whom Indian friends have shared intimate rites of their faith.

For a white to be admitted into that inner circle of confidence about Indian religion is a rare thing, accorded only to those holding full trust not to misrepresent a deeply cherished heritage.

"If the American Indian traditions speak with special force today, it is partly due to the reactions of many against the fragmented quality of our own society," Brown said.

Among Indians, he said, religion cannot "be separated from the forms and dynamics of everyday life" — a sharp contrast with most major religions in which their theological systems can be formulated apart from living experience.

Not so with American Indians in which concepts and values are delineated through the "voices" of nature, its forms, actions and forces, its visual and pictorial images, Brown said.

At the colloquium at Houston's Rothko chapel, focusing mostly on Oriental and other non-western religions, Brown told of his first, puzzling experience in exploring Indian religion first-hand.

He said that he sat with his tutor, Black Elk, "waiting anxiously for him to expound on Sioux doctrine," but he avoided compartmentalizing religion as a separate topic.

"And yet, when he was not smoking his pipe or singing with his drums or playing games with little children, he would be telling stories about animal beings and the traits and qualities they represented.

"It was not until later that I realized that indeed he was talking good Sioux doctrine, 'theology', but not in the abstract; his descriptions were integrated with experienced, reflected reality of the natural world."

Brown noted that Indian religion, through its integrating character, even breaks down the disparity between motheistic views of one God and polytheistic views of many gods.

In the Indian approach, he said, "concepts both of monotheism and polytheism intermingle and fuse without being confused. Belief in a single, unitary God does not conflict with ... belief in a multiplicity of 'gods' or 'spirits'."

Although the Dakota Sioux term, "Wakan-Tanka," denotes the one Great Spirit or Supreme Being, it also includes all the "spirits or powers of creation," Brown said, thus "embracing both unity and diversity."

As Black Elk put it, "WakanTanka, you are everything, and yet above everything."

Church group plans annual Christmas Walk

BLOOMINGBURG — Christmas may be five months distant on the calendar but for some women of the Bloomingburg Presbyterian Church it is very near every week.

Since April about 15 women have been meeting each Wednesday at the church for an all-day work session, making hand-crafted articles for the second annual Christmas Walk, scheduled this year for Nov. 10.

Following the pattern of last year's successful project, a ticket will entitle patrons to visit the three or four decorated homes. There they may get new ideas for decorating their own homes as well as buy the items displayed.

In general, the projects include Christmas decorations and unique gift items.

The money cleared last year went into the church treasury, but fully as important to the participants is the satisfaction of creating something original and the fellowship of working together.

Co-chairmen are Mrs. Alvin Writsel, Mrs. Norman Schiering, and Mrs. Richard Snyder.

There are approximately 14,000 commercial state and national banks in the United States, employing a total of more than one million persons.

We're strumming up a storm,
guitarman says

NEW YORK (AP) — The day of the guitar is finally arriving, according to vice president Robert P. Bull, of Fender Musical Instruments, which produces electric guitars and amplifiers.

Although the guitar has been America's most popular instrument for several years, more people are buying it, playing it and listening to it than ever before, Bull says.

He believes the upsurge indicates the tremendous increase in participation in music, most of it by young people, and with most emphasis on the guitar. He points out that the guitar is light, convenient, portable, highly versatile and can be amplified through a volume range of whispering to thundering.

Your Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

SATURDAY, AUG. 11

ARIES

(March 21 to April 20)

Expand efforts to encompass areas not heretofore trod but whose fields are fertile. Play cards "close to the vest," however, so as not to disclose plans to the opposition.

TAURUS

(April 21 to May 21)

Some past agreements may have to be strengthened, perhaps revised. Competition should enliven the day nicely. Be responsive to new ideas.

GEMINI

(May 22 to June 21)

Mercury, in favorable aspect, enlivens this day. Strategic moves, agile footwork, taking calculated risks will be harbingers of high scoring.

CANCER

(June 22 to July 23)

A special way of saying the right thing at the right time will pay. Be cognizant of "tricky" situations and handle deftly.

LEO

(July 24 to Aug. 23)

More restraint than usual may be needed to improve your chances for gain now. Don't rush into activities heedlessly. Plan and prepare well.

VIRGO

(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Mixed influences. Question and investigate where there is margin for error. Do not accept suggestions blindly. And do not expect more than is reasonable.

LIBRA

(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Entrust your affairs only to the trustworthy if you MUST put them into other hands but, where possible, handle what you can yourself. Curb emotions.

SCORPIO

(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

Some misleading influences. Carefully screen new acquaintances and don't let even the best of friends impose on your good nature.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

A business idea put to you in the forenoon will be worth consideration. On the personal side, evening activities could produce a strain. Don't overtax yourself.

PISCES

(Feb. 20 to March 20)

A good day for advancing your ideas. Superiors will be in a receptive mood; may even completely re-evaluate — and show greater appreciation of your abilities.

YOU BORN TODAY are a dynamic, ambitious and versatile individual, but extremely self-willed. There are many fields in which you could succeed, but the theater will be the most satisfying outlet for your talents — either as a playwright, actor, director or producer; as a dramatic critic, too. Other areas which may appeal to you: the law and statesmanship, medicine or education. You are extremely idealistic and humanitarian in your impulses, but do try to curb a susceptibility to flattery.

Redman reports higher earnings

DALLAS, Tex. — Redman Industries, Inc. announces that net earnings for the first quarter increased to 56 cents per share, before losses and reserves for real estate operations of 20 cents a share.

Quarter to quarter comparisons for the period ended June 29, 1973 indicate a 55 per cent gain in net income prior to real estate operations, and a 21 per cent gain after the inclusion of real estate operations.

Lee Posey, president of Redman Industries, indicated that first quarter performance exhibited excellent operations in the manufacturing areas, and a further shake-out of problems in the real estate operations.

Posey further said that "the company has become increasingly conservative in its real estate accounting methods and now has an approximate $6.4 million reserve for possible performance on certain guaranties with real estate equity partners." He added that "it is management's feeling that eventually some portion of this reserve will be returned to net income as these guaranties expire."

Let's tour Ohio

Marietta old, interesting

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is one of a series of short tours of Ohio travel attractions prepared by the Fayette County Automobile Club for The Record-Herald.

The AAA tour this week is a two-state adventure with a tour of Ohio's oldest city, Marietta, and a trip across the Ohio River to Parkersburg, W. Va.

Sponsored by the Ohio Company, Marietta was founded in 1788 by 49 pioneers led by Rufus Putnam. The settlement drew its name from Queen Marie Antoinette, in recognition of French aid to the colonies during the American Revolutionary War.

The Ohio River town also became the first center of government of the Northwest Territory with Arthur St. Clair as governor.

Showers pelt areas of U.S.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thundershowers pelted scattered areas of the nation today while heat and humidity clung to most of the country from the Mississippi Valley to the Eastern Seaboard.

One storm front extended from Arkansas to the southern Appalachians with the heaviest rainfall concentrated in eastern Tennessee.

Other thunderstorms were scattered along a crescent from Michigan to Illinois, throughout most of Kansas and along the Gulf and South Atlantic coasts.

Most of the nation east of the Mississippi was plagued by high humidity while a slowly moving cold front brought some relief to the Western Great Lakes and the northern Midwest.

Campus Martius State Memorial Museum was the first home of Putnam and was originally a square of fortified residences where settlers took refuge against Indian attacks. The museum, administered by the Ohio Historical Society, now has an imposing collection of Putnam and other pioneer relics, as well as replicas of famous river boats. Behind the museum and of interest to the visitor is a restoration of The Ohio Company.

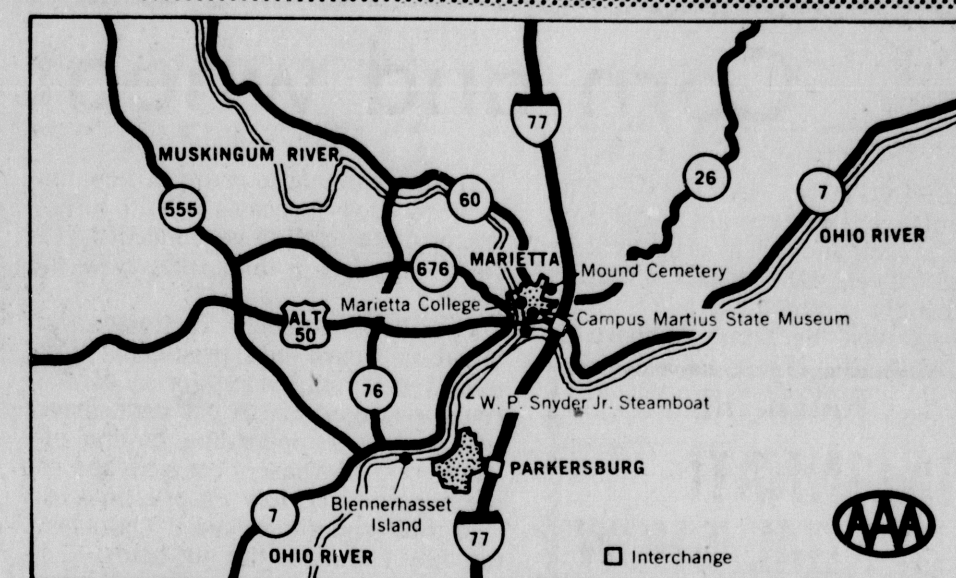

An eye-catcher is the W.P. Snyder, Jr., one of the last stern-wheelers to travel the Ohio River, now moored near the junction of the Ohio and Muskingum rivers and is open to visitors.

Mound Cemetery is a burial ground for Indians and pioneers and contains an example of prehistoric Mound builders' art in the famed "Conus."

PARKERSBURG is a city of diversified industry and has visible reminders of pioneer days. The Centennial Cabin and Museum was built in 1804 and contains relics and documents of early days in this area.

One mile below Parkersburg in the Ohio River is Blennerhassett Island. It was here in 1798 that Harman Blennerhassett, a wealthy English immigrant, built the most palatial home west of the Alleghenies. It also was here that Aaron Burr is said to have plotted a conspiracy for establishing an empire in the Southwest Territory.

Your AAA Club suggests this routing to today's tour area: From Washington C.H., take U.S. 35 to Chillicothe, using the bypass around that city, to U.S. 50. Continue east on U.S. 50 through Athens and east to Ohio 7 which takes you to Marietta. There cross the river and take Rt. 14 south to Parkersburg.

Open burning law unenforceable, Sullivan charges

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—The chairman of the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency's citizen advisory council says the EPA's open burning regulations are "unenforceable and unintelligible."

William A. Sullivan of Warren, a public hearing designed to take testimony on updating the regulations, which cover all open burning. Most fires are prohibited without special permit.

"If these regulations are to be anything more than a minor skirmish in the bureaucracy's paper war against pollution, they must be capable of local enforcement," Sullivan told EPA officials.

"And by that I mean that local officials will have to have the expertise to understand them, the inclination to enforce them and the authority to make the enforcement work."

Paper workers union strikes at St. Regis

COSHOCTON, Ohio (AP)—About 100 members of Local 238, United Paper Workers Union, struck the St. Regis Paper Co. container division Thursday after contract talks broke down.

A company spokesman said the dispute centered on wages. The old contract expired July 23.

Corn and wheat at record levels

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says this season's corn and wheat crops will be at record levels, although not as high as was thought a month ago.

Deputy Asst. Secretary Richard E.

Bell was reluctant to estimate how the reduced crop forecasts would affect grocery prices. But he conceded: "I can't say that I think they will be lower."

The department's Outlook and Situation Board had predicted Wednesday that retail prices for all of 1973 could average 18 to 22 per cent above 1972 averages, depending on the effectiveness of Phase 4 controls and on the accuracy of July crop estimates.

In most significant cases Thursday, the July estimates did not hold.

Three hours after the August crop-production report came out Thursday with estimates of corn and soybeans, Butz said that where export controls are concerned, "The policy of the government remains as the President outlined in his July 18 statement."

At that time, Nixon said, "Permanent control of exports is not the policy of this government, and we do not intend to broaden the controls beyond those now in force."

Controls would not be needed, Nixon said, "unless present crop expectations are seriously disappointing or foreign demands are extremely large."

Two hours before Butz's statement on export controls, Bell noted the lowered crop estimates and of mounting prices for wheat and grain on commodity markets.

"We have to study the data...over the next several days," Bell said repeatedly.

Meanwhile, as the price of wheat hit $4.41 a bushel on the Chicago commodity exchange, compared with $1.71 a year ago, international wheat experts predicted the world wheat crisis could last until January.

Arabella the space spider given chance to come home

LEXINGTON, Mass. (AP) — Arabella the space spider has done such a good job of web spinning on the Skylab space station that she may have won herself a return ticket home.

The original plan called for leaving the spiders to die in space after completing the experiment to see how weightlessness affected their web spinning abilities.

Both spiders were fed flies before going into space and this last meal was supposed to keep them alive for only the first month of the 59-day flight.

But after Arabella's stirring performance, Astronaut Owen K. Garriott gave her and her sister, Anita, a piece of his filet mignon. It's hoped the human food will keep them alive for the rest of the mission.

Storm hits Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—A fierce storm that raked into northeastern Ohio from Lake Erie late Thursday night knocked down power lines in Cleveland and hospitalized a 45-year-old man who was touched by a broken line.

Hospital officials said Robert E. Lynch was in serious condition.

Police said Lynch was injured when he tried to flip a fallen power line away from an area where children were walking. Another man probably saved Lynch's life by lifting the wire from Lynch's chest after he was knocked to the ground, police said.

Several thousand Cleveland homes were blacked out temporarily after the storm ripped down wires across the city.

Police in Cleveland and surrounding suburbs said a number of trees were damaged by the high winds and that about two dozen minor traffic accidents were believed to be storm-related.

Hummingbirds feed on tiny insects as well as on the nectar of flowers.

EPA checks out complaints about burning

Complaints of open burning in Washington C.H. are being checked by the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency. Miss Susan Goetz, field biologist for the Ohio EPA in Dayton, was in the city this week.

She said that before the agency "clamps down" on the no-burning regulations, it wants everyone to be aware of the new laws.

She said the open burning of trash, waste paper and landscape waste is now prohibited in practically every town and city in Ohio. This open burning ban applies to all persons living within restricted areas, including Washington C.H.

A "restricted area" is defined as the area within the boundaries of any municipal corporation, plus a zone extending 1,000 feet beyond the boundaries of any municipality having a population between 1,000 and 10,000 persons. For municipalities having more than 10,000 persons, the restricted area extends one mile beyond the corporation limits.

If a municipality does not have a collection service, the residents would be allowed to burn. This would, however, only be allowed until collection service is available or until July 1, 1975, which ever is sooner. Many communities have already responded to the regulation by initiating collection services, she said.

FARMERS and other Ohioans who live outside a restricted area may burn under certain conditions. These conditions include burning on the premises where the waste originated and 1,000 feet from the nearest residential area, burning only when conditions are such as to readily dissipate the smoke and only after certain wastes have been stacked and dried. Care should be taken to avoid causing a visibility problem if the burning is done near a highway, airport or railroad, according to the agency representative.

For large burning operations such as land clearing projects, permission must be obtained from the Ohio EPA before any wastes can be burned. Anyone interested in obtaining permission should write to the Ohio EPA and outline where and why the burning is to take place.

If air pollution is to be controlled all sources must be covered by the regulations. Open burning is hazardous to the health of the people in the vicinity.

Last fall, 40 children in Mount Vernon were hospitalized and many more were treated for allergic reactions to the open burning of leaves.

Although the majority of the Ohio EPA emission regulations apply to "visible" sources of air pollution, the open burning regulation literally affects every citizen in Ohio, the EPA says. "The Ohio EPA will be working hard to control these larger sources of air pollution but it is up to each citizen to do his part if air pollution is to be controlled," Miss Goetz said.

C. of C. directors meet

Hiestand discusses Assembly's progress

Progress by the 110th General Assembly was discussed Thursday afternoon by State Rep. Joseph F. Hiestand, R-77, of Hillsboro, when he met with the Washington C. H. Area Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors.

Hiestand reviewed the $10 billion budget bill, the largest in the state's history. Other topics included were land appraisal, voter registration, no-fault automobile insurance, ethics legislation, revenue sharing and Environmental Protection Agency legislation.

A short session, possibly 90 days or less, was predicted by Hiestand for the second half of the current session which begins Jan. 1, 1974. The current Assembly will reconvene briefly on Aug. 27.

IN RECENT WEEKS attention has been given to the possibility of Deer Creek Lake in Fayette and Pickaway counties being considered for development of lodge and vacation cabin facilities. Alum Creek Reservoir in Delaware County has been under consideration, but additional land acquisition and other factors have caused planners to take another look.

The Chamber has contacted U.S. Rep. William H. Harsha, R-6, in regard to the proposal, and the board's executive committee will be working with the Circleville Area Chamber of Commerce in studying the plan.

After hearing and discussing a report by the legislative and congressional action committee, the Chamber board agreed that early passage of the Alaska Pipeline Legislation is in the best interest of the nation, and that early delivery of this oil and gas will hopefully ease the energy crisis. The board has agreed to contact the Ohio delegation urging their support.

In other action Thursday, the board reviewed the 1973 Fayette County Fair, heard reports from the education and physicians committees, appointed a study committee to determine the possibility of more local involvement in the monthly flea markets, and agreed to pursue a Chamber accreditation program sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Rhodes sees grass roots support

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Former Gov. James Rhodes emerged from a meeting with small county Republican chairmen Thursday night and expressed confidence his candidacy for a third term had grassroots support.

"I am very encouraged at this point," Rhodes said. "I think I have the support of most of these people, big city and small county organizations alike."

While not endorsing Rhodes' candidacy outright, chairmen attending the meeting passed a resolution encouraging him to run.

Rhodes said 50 small county chairmen attended the private meeting, but one chairman present put the figure closer to 20.

The chairman, who is not noted as a Rhodes backer and asked that his name not be used, said support of Rhodes at the meeting was somewhat less than enthusiastic.

He said only three persons spoke on Rhodes' behalf. "They were mostly Rhodes cabinet officials and hangers-on from his days as governor," he said.

Rhodes predicted the Gilligan administration's mistakes in the field of penal reform would be a major campaign issue.

He emphasized that he is a candidate for governor and "would not be, under any circumstances, a candidate for the U.S. Senate."

There has been speculation that Rhodes would run for the Senate if incumbent Sen. William Saxbe, R-Ohio, voiced interest in the governorship.

Searchers seek to pinpoint boy's radio distress signals

CHILILI, N.M. (AP) — Searchers combed through conflicting reports today as they continued their efforts to locate the origin of radio distress signals broadcast by a boy who identified himself only as Larry and said he was lost.

Authorities said the reports have come from persons who said they have heard the boy's signal in various places in New Mexico. But the searchers have been unable to pinpoint the origin of the signal.

"We're having a heck of a time tracking down all these rumors coming from California to Ontario, Canada—all of which have been proven false," said State Police Sgt. A.B. Whitehouse, who is heading the police effort.

"Everybody is in the process of trying to relay something. I think we better get our information together and get the truth separated from rumors," Whitehouse said.

The boy's radio signals have grown weaker since the first distress calls were heard Tuesday night by citizens band operators.

"Some of the radio operators who were getting strong signals from the boy Wednesday night say the signal is faint now," said a state police dispatcher.

The voice was first reported to New Mexico authorities by a California citizens band operator. She said the boy told her his father had collapsed at the wheel of their pickup truck in New Mexico and the truck had overturned. The voice said his name was Larry and he was seven years old.

Cattle raisers caught in cost price pinch

By JAMES WILSON
Associated Press Writer
MISSION, S.D. (AP) — Howard Lamoureux is one of the high-rollers of the Great Plains.

He has survived blizzards and droughts for half a century while building a 17,000-acre cattle ranch. But he's not sure how he survived the high cost of raising beef, and says ranchers have much more to lose than consumers from today's soaring market prices.

"We can lose everything we have," he says.

Lamoureux and his grandson, Bill Potter, operate the 27-square mile spread between Mission, S.D., and Valentine, Neb., in the heart of the cattle country of the Upper Midwest. They raise about 500 head of their own cattle and graze another 2,500 head for cowmen who have the money to buy calves but don't have the grass to fatten them.

The ranchers buy 400-pound calves in the fall, feed them to about 800 pounds during the next 12 months and then sell to feeders who fatten the animals for commercial slaughter.

Last fall Lamoureux and Potter sold 350 head of yearlings for $42.50 a hundredweight. Last week they rejected an offer of $50 a hundredweight.

"I asked $55 and was turned down," said Potter, 25. "Two days later I heard feeders were paying $65 a hundred for yearlings. The market is so wild nobody knows what they're worth."

Potter said his yearlings will go to sales barns after the Sept. 12 beef freeze ends. "We don't know what they're worth but an auction should get us a fair price," he said.

Name Gilligan in Burr Oak park action

CAMBRIDGE, Ohio (AP)—Common Pleas Judge Merle Hoddinott is expected to rule next week on a contempt of court action sought against Gov. John Gilligan for closing the lodge and cabins at Burr Oak State Park.

The action was filed by Ohio Inns, Inc., the firm that operates the lodge and restaurant at the park.

It claims Gilligan violated a Guernsey County Common Pleas Court order directing the state not to interfere in the operation or in a labor dispute between Ohio Inns and employees seeking union recognition.

State attorneys argued during a hearing before Hoddinott Thursday that the situation changed after the court order was issued July 19. They cited incidents of breach of peace, civil disorder and threat of bloodshed.

Ohio Inns contended the governor did not have the authority to close the facilities.

When Gilligan issued the closing order last week, he said he was doing it in the interest of public safety and cited several recent incidents and three bomb threats.

Ohio Perspective

Guards grumble at Lucasville

By JACK HALL
The Portsmouth Times
LUCASVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Guards at the new Southern Ohio Correctional Facility, consistent critics of the year-old prison, griped louder than ever after two of their fellow officers were killed last month.

"The prisoners call that place Lucasville Hilton and we serve as bellhops to them," said Guard Frank Yerardi.

"They tell us what they want to do and we can't do anything about it."

A group of guards met the other day in the Teamster Union hall, prin-

Lamoureux, in his 70s, and Potter, an Air Force veteran who has worked with his grandfather most of his life, said the prices sound good but there's another side of the coin. They said overhead costs have tightened the profit margin to the point where only the high prices at the market are saving the business.

"Last year we paid $220 a ton for the high-protein feed that supplements the wild hay we feed the cattle," Potter said. "Today it costs $350 a ton."

"That was a $25,000 tractor you saw being hauled away for repairs," the rancher said. "We've got two more rigs for cutting hay that cost $15,000 apiece. You can't buy a tractor for less than $10,000."

Potter said the next problem may be the accelerating cost of purchasing calves for the next crop. "Last year we paid $52.50 a hundredweight for the calves. The price could go out of sight this year."

His grandfather added: "The only bigger gambler than a cattle rancher is a farmer."

"Sometimes I really get angry," Potter said. "I wished the meat boycotters could come out here some week in the winter when we're working 10 or 11 hours a day in below-zero weather feeding the animals. We work Sunday mornings, and last winter I worked all day on Christmas and New Year's."

"Starting Monday we'll have to work 14 straight days getting the hay up. Then we'll have to sort cattle and get them ready to sell. After we buy our new crop of calves, we vaccinate them, dehorn and brand them and check for illnesses."

Ten miles to the northwest toward the community of Mission, there is another Lamoureux operation, smaller in land but larger in the number of livestock.

Howard's brother, Claude, owned and operated the ranch for more than a quarter of a century until his death two months ago. Bob Lamoureux, Claude's son, is looking after it today while continuing his job for the Caterpillar Tractor Co. in Peoria, Ill.

The ranch covers 13,000 acres and is considered by cattlemen in South Dakota and northern Nebraska as perhaps the best balanced operation in the region. Its lush pastures provide feed for more than a 1,000 cattle and calves.

"Ranchers are taking a bum rap for the high cost of beef," said Bob Lamoureux, a middle-aged civil engineer. "In 1948, my dad sold 400 head of yearlings for 30 cents a pound. Today they may be worth 60 cents a pound. But the cost of machinery, feed supplements and labor has increased sevenfold."

Howard and Bob Lamoureux own about 50 square miles of South Dakota prairie worth more than $2 million. They acknowledge that between them they have about $200,000 worth of machinery. The auction price of their combined cow and cattle herds would bring them more than $1 million.

Howard Lamoureux says a rancher is fortunate to make 2 per cent on his investment.

"But," said Bob Lamoureux, "we could make more money if we had the money we have invested in ranching in government bonds instead. But we have two things going for us: the continuing appreciation of the value of the land and the fact that we are doing something we enjoy."

cipally to share complaints about the $32.5 million prison. They talked most about leniency, guard shortages, inadequate training, overburdened bureaucracy and the lack of a death penalty.

"If an inmate cuts your guts out, you are supposed to pat him on the back and tell him you know he comes from a broken home," told Glenn Bailey, a four-year veteran of Ohio's penal system.

Ed Pemberton said one guard sometimes takes the place of three within the walls. He rationalized uneasily, "It's a case of dollars versus safety and security."

"Security should be the first part of a guard's training. But it's the last," said Officer Gary Lundy.

"The training we receive at the academy is useless. We receive no training in self-defense or riot control."

"Treatment of the men is all we're taught. We are told to forget everything we learned at Ohio Penitentiary because that is the old way and this is the new way," complained Yerardi.

"One guard is locked in a cell block with 80 men," Bailey said. "What kind

NEW YORK (AP) — Alan Abel, who often pops up on radio and TV to deliver a hoax or two, last month was investigated by the Federal Bureau of Investigation about a hoax concerning the Watergate hearings.

A source close to the investigation — Abel, to be precise — says it happened a few weeks after he and a female colleague hoaxed some members of the fourth estate at a news conference in Washington, D.C.

His colleague, an actress, posed as a repentant call girl who'd been prompted by the nationally-televised Watergate hearings to come forth with her own revelations of high-level hanky-panky.

She spoke of political espionage in boudoirs, paid for by Republicans who hired her to fool around with Democrats and by Democrats who hired her to fool around with Republicans.

The lady, who gave her dimensions as "37-24-35½," also told of one Washington orgy attended by "a who's who — in the nude, of course."

All of it was sheer imagination and the handiwork of Abel, 46, and a professional hoaxer since 1959, when he drew national attention with his campaign to clothe naked animals.

Alas, after Abel's latest caper, a prankster phoned Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., head of the Senate Watergate Committee, and passed himself off successfully, if briefly, as Treasury Secretary George Schultz.

He told Ervin the White House would give the committee its secret, Watergate-related tape recordings. Ervin reported this during the hearings, but quickly learned it was a hoax. The FBI was called in.

Abel, who is serious only when emphasizing he had no part in the Ervin hoax, which violated a federal law, says the FBI apparently remembered his earlier legitimate hoax and got to wondering.

The next thing, he said, was that two FBI agents came to his Manhattan apartment, interrogated him for two hours and warned "that I was the prime suspect" in the Ervin hoax.

"I at first thought I'd interrogate them a little bit," Abel laughed. "But then I thought, 'well, I better not play around with these guys. This is business.'"

An FBI spokesman here confirmed that the agents did question Abel and that the Ervin hoax "was the thrust of their questioning."

"Most of their questioning was to pinpoint my whereabouts at the time the phone call (to Ervin) was made," Abel said. "I was able to prove the fact that at that time I was at a studio in New York, doing a telephone interview for the BBC radio."

"They were very thorough," Abel said of the agents. "They had a complete dossier on all of my activities, going all the way back to when I launched my first campaign to clothe naked animals."

Whenever the photo credit line "by Joe Clark, HBSS" pops up, I recall an unpretentious buddy with a folksy sense of wisdom and homespun humor plus an ingenious flair for producing story-telling pictures.

Years ago, he and I met at photo short courses and seminars and he was called — and still is — "Detroit's best known photographer." But he never stopped reminiscing — and still doesn't — about his Cumberland Gap beginnings in the Tennessee hills. That's where he acquired his degree, HBSS. It stands for Hill Billy Snap Shooter.

For Joe Clark, now 68 and with roots in Cumberland Gap and Detroit, photography like charity begins at home.

"People have a notion they have to travel abroad to get 'great pictures,'" he says. "They fancy all they need is the Taj Mahal, Swiss Alps or the spiffy uniform of a Vatican papal guard.

"Taint so. There are good pictures under our noses in our own backyards. But you have to sniff 'em out to really see them. And you also have to feel... to care. When you put feeling into pictures of people doing simple everyday things, you can make great pictures."

THE MOST recent book about his native Cumberland Gap, "Tennessee Hill Folk" by Joe Clark, HBSS, has an introductory essay by Jesse Stuart. He's another native mountain boy who grew up to rhapsodize about the area, but his medium is poetry and prose.

Stuart rates Clark's 80 photos in the book (published by Vanderbilt University Press, Nashville, Tenn.) as immortal gems, a permanent testimonial to a vanishing way of life.

When Clark made his first photos in the 1930s, he never dreamed he was photographing for posterity — he was only taking pictures of his kinkfolk and neighbors for his personal album.

He also wanted to show them to his fellow workers on the graveyard shift at a Detroit department store to go along with his hill folk stories. But even then it was evident he handled his $12 camera with the instinctive eye and feeling of a photographer at heart.

Lady Luck came along at this period. She managed to have a man from advertising happen to see Clark's photos. He was impressed enough to produce a store display. This was seen by a Life editor and the magazine bought and ran a spread on a mountain wedding photographed in a rain.

With the discovery that people paid money for photographs, Joe Clark, department store janitor and night watchman, became a full-time photographer with this own degree: HBSS.

"Yup, I quit work, got into photography and have never worked since!" he says with a chuckle. "Leastwise, I enjoy it so much I can't call it work."

IN DETROIT, Joe's Philosophy photography was illustrated some time ago in a University of Detroit exhibition, "It's the Simple Things That Count." It consisted of about 200 photographs in black-and-white and 40 in color, all of which were taken within 25 miles of Joe Clark's home.

The pictures included people, activities and scenes which touch the lives of countless families in everyday living. Despite the diversity of subject matter, the photos had a common bond: they looked deceptively easy to take... snapshot easy. Actually, like most great pictures, they required an extra something — creative thinking or feeling — in each situation to achieve visual impact.

"That extra something may be in a wise choice of what to shoot," Clark says, "or the story-telling angle you select. Maybe it's hitting the peak instant when you press that button or maybe it's the way you use light to create drama or mood in the picture. Maybe the extra something is just the confidence and friendship you convey to people in front of your lens... and their trust in you."

Even when all the various ingredients for a good picture are gathered together, it often takes a lot of shooting to make them jell, to capture just one shot in which the elements blend in perfect harmony.

"Every great picture is made on one single frame with just one snap of the shutter," says the Hill Billy Snap Shooter. "It doesn't matter how many frames in between you have to throw away. So you must approach each and every picture you take as though, 'This is the great one!' With that kind of thinking and trying, you're gonna hit the target."

NEW YORK (AP) — Evidence builds that Americans, including professional economists, businessmen and even some government officials, are resigning themselves to a future of rising prices.

Statements and observations by people in every walk of life suggest that, in varying degrees, they believe it is futile to anticipate a return to the 1 and 2 per cent inflation sought in years gone by.

Moreover, they are acting on their premises. Escalator clauses are being built into more contractual agreements, not just between labor and management but in Social Security and life insurance and even home mortgages.

Bidding Quiz

You open One Diamond and partner responds One Spade. What would you bid now with each of the following five hands?

1. ♠KJ7 ♥83 ♦AQ9862 ♣A5
2. ♠KQ85 ♥K6 ♦AKQ873 ♣10
3. ♠6 ♥AQ5 ♦KQJ94 ♣A983
4. ♠AK8 ♥94 ♦AQJ86 ♣A75
5. ♠Q43 ♥AQ8 ♦KQ97 ♣AK6

1. Two spades. This is not the most accurate rebid in the world, but it is the best available. There is a natural aversion to raising immediately with only three trumps, and equally there is an aversion to failing to rebid a good six-card suit.

However, an accurate rebid in diamonds is simply not possible. To leap to three diamonds would constitute a gross exaggeration of values, and at the same time two diamonds would understate the value of the hand. Faced with this dilemma, it is best to raise spades. This is more encouraging than two diamonds and more likely to get partner to bid again. The spade raise will cause partner to look upon his values more favorably.

2. Four spades. It would be wrong to bid either three diamonds, which partner might pass, or three spades, which partner might also pass — though he is less likely to do so.

The leap to four is not a closing bid. On the contrary, it states in plain the Federal Reserve Board is in as powerful a position relative to inflation as almost any man in America, was quoted in recent weeks as saying that "supply and demand forces in the world economy can swamp anything that the Federal Reserve does to curb inflation."

Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, has conceded his disillusionment with past price restraint efforts and has become more pessimistic about price stability for the immediate future.

"We are going to be continuously confronted with choices between higher prices and shortages," he told the American Bar Association this week. Earlier, he told the Joint Economic Committee, "We have before us a period of a strong tendency to higher prices."

Argus Research Corp., which wholesales much of the economic research and investment advice used by stockbrokers, noted in its latest weekly staff report that:

"The past couple of weeks have been marked by a growing recognition that a relatively high rate of inflation has become a permanent way of life in the United States."

Noting the remarks by Burns and Stein, it added: "The extent to which the durability of relatively rapid inflation has become accepted is the willingness of government officials to 'fess up' to the fact.

"As the ones charged with the maintenance of economic stability, government officials have traditionally been loath to admit publicly that inflation will continue, even though deep in their hearts they know that it will."

First National City Bank, one of the most influential commercial banks in the world, observes in its Monthly Economic letter that the unprecedented rise in borrowing costs is tied to expectations of future inflation.

"The steep rise in short-term interest rates reflects the corresponding climb in inflation expectations," it said, forecasting that "a slowdown may depress rates, but future inflation is the key."

Reds launch key trip with Cards

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds, currently baseball's hottest club with 30 wins in their last 40 games, open a two week road trip tonight against 1973 nemesis St. Louis.

It's a collision between two clubs who overcame early-season problems to roar back into pennant contention in opposite divisions of the National League.

St. Louis, after setting a club record with a disastrous 5-20 start has bounced from the basement into the Eastern Division lead. The Cards have won five of six games with Cincinnati this season.

In their last meeting, St. Louis staggered the Reds with 31 runs in sweeping a threegame series by scores of 12-4, 11-5 and 8-0.

The Reds have regrouped since dropping 11 games behind Western Division leader Los Angeles and moved to within three games Wednesday night.

The sizzling .750 pace since July 1 has kept pennant hopes alive, but Manager Sparky Anderson says the Reds will have to maintain the torrid tear to win a third division title in four years.

"The team that wins the west will need 100 wins. That means we have to win 31 of our last 46 games," said Anderson as the Reds took a day off Thursday.

Cincinnati sends young Ross Grimsley, 11-6, against Rick Wise, 13-7, tonight with Jack Billingham, 15-8, and Don Gullett, 13-8, to follow Saturday and Sunday.

The Cardinals have lost pitching star Bob Gibson for an indefinite period due to a knee injury. The Cards have since lost three straight games.

Two Reds are on astonishing hitting streaks. Veteran Pete Rose, who is hitting .420 in his last 44 games, remains the National League's leading hitter with a .342 average.

Rookie Dan Driessen, who won't be eligible for the batting title, has hit safely in the last 19 games he's started to raise his average to .345. Driessen won't have the necessary number of plate appearances to be eligible. He has at least two hits in his last eight games.

Anderson has been heartened by the lively batting surge which has lifted the team batting average from a league-low .236 in June to .249.

The Reds move on to Pittsburgh, New York and Chicago to complete the 13-game road swing.

PGA tourney leadership shaken up

CLEVELAND (AP) — Al Geiberger forgot his peanut butter and still matched the competitive course record with a four-under-par 67.

Don Iverson, armed with a tip from Lee Trevino, flashed the same 67.

The improbable pair's performances Thursday left all of pro golf's glamor names far behind heading into today's second round of the 55th PGA National Championship at the Canterbury Golf Club.

However, Geiberger, Iverson, and Bob Dickson and Mike Hill, deadlocked for third at 69, all played their rounds early on the hot, steamy day before winds swirled over the 6,852-yard layout.

The skinny Geiberger still munches peanut butter for energy out on the course but confessed, "I forgot the peanut butter and crackers today. Instead, I took a bite of a friend's hot dog on the 16th tee."

"You watch," said U.S. Open champion John Miller, who was in a logjam at 72. "Those guys who shot the good rounds this morning will have trouble tomorrow, if the conditions stay the same."

The forecast, though, called for 60 per cent chance of rain and thunderstorms.

Tom Weiskopf occupied the best spot among the big names. The British Open champion fired a 70, sharing sixth place with former PGA king Ray Floyd, Don Bies, Tony Jacklin, Gibby Gilbert and Bob Brue.

In a large group at par 71 was No. 1 money winner Bruce Crampton.

Among those at 72 was Jack Nicklaus.

Defending champion Gary Player and Masters winner Tommy Aaron struggled in with 73s. Arnold Palmer and Lee Trevino took 76s.

Unless Nicklaus, Palmer, Trevino and Player turn things around today, the superstars are on the verge of drawing a blank for the 1973 Big Four. This is the last of the major titles.

Thomas, Jurgensen scheduled for duty

WASHINGTON (AP) — If running back Duane Thomas could be compared to an expensive automobile that's been in storage a year, to what could quarterback Sonny Jurgensen be compared?

Thomas, who sat out the 1972 National Football League season before being traded to Washington last month, will start his first game in more than a year when the Redskins meet the Denver Broncos tonight in an exhibition game.

Charlie Waller, Redskins offensive backfield coach, says Thomas has made "amazing progress."

"Every day is better than the day before," said Waller. "He's practicing well, he's got a good football mind, it's just a matter of getting enough repetition."

"You just don't put a new Cadillac in the garage for a year and a half, then crank it right up and expect it to run like it did before."

But there was no comment on what could be expected from a so-called antique collector's item—the 38-year-old Jurgensen who will make his first game appearance since last Oct. 29 when he severed his Achilles tendon while playing against the New York Giants.

Jurgensen, who is scheduled to play the second half, is apprehensive, but emphasized "that doesn't mean I don't want to play."

"I would have liked to have had more time, but this is a necessity," he said.

Jurgensen was slated to split quarterbacking duties with Bill Kilmer after Sam Wyche, the No. 3 man, suffered a fractured cheekbone in a 17-14 loss to Detroit last Friday.

In NFL action Saturday, Baltimore will be at Atlanta, Buffalo at Green Bay, Philadelphia at Cincinnati, Cleveland at Los Angeles, Chicago at Houston, New Orleans at Miami, the New York Jets take on San Francisco at Tampa, Fla., Dallas is at Oakland, Minnesota hosts Pittsburgh and St. Louis is at San Diego.

The New York Giants are at New England Sunday, and Detroit plays at Kansas City Monday night.

2 Browns guards OKd for action

HIRAM, Ohio (AP)—Cleveland Browns guards John DeMarie and Pete Adams passed X-ray tests at a Cleveland clinic, and the Browns said both should be ready for action this weekend.

A third player, rookie offensive tackle Tom Humphrey, has a fractured thumb but probably will also play, the Browns said. Team trainers said Adams and DeMarie both have sore spots but no broken bones.

The Browns fly to the coast tonight for a Saturday date with the Los Angeles Rams, the second exhibition game of the season. The Browns dropped a 27-16 decision to the San Francisco 49ers Monday.

A final light workout was planned today before the team heads west. Coach Nick Skorich said there have been no changes in the starting unit, although he hopes to screen a batch of rookies if the game permits.

Last season's quarterback, Mike Phipps, was slated to see action through the first half and into the second, Skorich said.

Perfecta pays off with thumping $3,995

FLORENCE, Ky. (AP) — The only ticket purchased in the newly-introduced Big Perfecta returned $3,995.10 to a better Thursday night at the Latonia Trot.

The bettor had to pick the winning 3-5 ticket in the seventh race to earn a chance at picking the first two horses in the eighth race. No one correctly selected the winning 4-3 ticket in the eighth so the single bettor was awarded the payoff on a 3-5-4-11 basis.

Bondsville won the featured $3,000 conditioned mile pace by 2 1/4 lengths in 2:06 3/5. The winner paid $9.80, $3.20 and $2.20.

The Colts announced Thursday that linebacker Ray May would miss Saturday's game and cornerback Bruce Laird is a doubtful starter. Both have sprained knees. Bert Jones, the Colts' top draft pick from Louisiana State, is expected to play about one half of the game at quarterback.

Pat Sullivan was tapped to start at

North team favored over South tonight

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — A bigger North squad rates a solid favorite to whip the South tonight and take a one-game lead in the Ohio high school All-Star Football Series.

The North has taken the last two contests by one touchdown to deadlock the series at 12 victories each.

Three games have ended in ties in the event that matches the state's top seniors from the previous season.

More than 17,000 will watch the game at Fawcett Stadium and 1,000 more will view it on a statewide television network.

Each side is under the 33-player limit this year.

Dave Migliore of Dover quit and Mike Gayles of Cincinnati-Princeton elected not to play for the South.

The North lost quarterback Tim Starrett of North Canton with an injury in practice last week.

Migliore, Dover's first team Class AAA all-state quarterback, left the South practice last week because he was not being used at that position. He was being groomed as a defensive back instead.

The North's size impresses the South's head coach, Ken Amlin of Dayton-Patterson.

"That North is really big," said Amlin. "We're going to have to run around them, not over them."

Myers hopes to top pass catching mark

WILMINGTON, Ohio (AP) — Cincinnati split end Chip Myers, who overcame two broken arms to blossom into one of pro football's top receivers a year ago, says it was no accident.

The secret is being in the right place at the right time he says.

"The quarterback can depend on me being exactly where he tells me to be. Some receivers get funny notions and stray out of their pattern. If I'm told, 10 yards, it will be 10 yards," said Myers, who caught a club record 57 passes last season and was named to the Pro Bowl.

"I think I can top that," said Myers, who tied for third in NFL receptions. Saturday night, the Bengals face Harold Jackson of Philadelphia, who topped the NFL with 62 catches last year.

The 28-year-old Myers feels former All-Pro tight end Bob Trumpy and newcomers Charlie Joiner and No. 1 draft choice Isaac Curtis give the Bengals "as good a receiving corps anybody can put together in the league."

"We have two 6-foot-5 guys — Trumpy and myself — who can catch and two speed burners in Joiner and Curtis," said Myers.

"This club isn't that far away, but it's a matter of aggressiveness. We've got the people and the ability. Now it's a matter of confidence. Everything snowballs with a couple wins," he said.

quarterback for Atlanta against the Colts. The 1971 Heisman Trophy winner currently is battling veteran Dick Shiner for the starting job.

The Steelers hope to continue last week's rushing success against Minnesota. Against Baltimore, they gained 296 yards rushing with Preston Pearson carrying 10 times for 126 yards. Franco Harris, who provided the bulk of Pittsburgh's ground game last year, gained only 31 yards against the Colts.

Giants' quarterback Randy Johnson completed his last 15 passes last weekend against San Diego and will get a chance to continue the streak Sunday when he is expected to start against New England. The regular season record is 15, held by Len Dawson of Kansas City and Joe Namath of the Jets.

Babe Flossie of Akron-Garfield the North's head coach plans a simpler attack for the Yankees.

"You can run around the field all you want," he said, "but you have to move the ball forward. That's what we intend to do."

Flossie intends to start his son, Ben, at quarterback with Chuck Miller of Sandusky also expected to play at quarterback.

The South has been alternating Art Yaroch of Columbus Waterson and Kirk Lewis of Dayton Wright at quarterback.

The winning squad will remain intact to face the Pennsylvania All-Stars Saturday night, Aug. 18, in the Big 33 game in Hershey, Pa.

Prep grid game to be telecast

The 28th annual Ohio High School North-South All-Star football game will be telecast live from Canton's Fawcett Stadium starting at 8 p.m. tonight by Channels 2, 4 and 5.

Ken Coleman, TV voice of the Boston Red Sox, and Willie Davis, a former Green Bay Packer star, will be handling the play-by-play.

Mrs. Moore captures women's h'cap title

Mrs. Donald Moore captured the 1973 women's handicap golf championship Thursday by defeating Mrs. William Wead 6-5 in the finals at the Washington Country Club.

Mrs. Moore, who defeated Mrs. William Junk, Mrs. Ralph Bray and Mrs. Robert Heiny to reach the finals, shot a 46 in the nine-hole playoff while Mrs. Wead had a 54 score.

Laticia Robinson was the defending women's handicap champion.

MRS. WEAD defeated Mrs. Donald Anderson, Mrs. Robert Link and Mrs. W.K. Robinson to earn a berth in the finals.

In the first flight championship, Mrs. Walter Oswald captured top honors by defeating Mrs. Roland Holthouse 2-1 in Thursday's finals. Mrs. Oswald had earlier defeated Mrs. Otis Hess and Mrs. John Aills while Mrs. Holthouse had reached the finals by beating Mrs. Harry Thrallkill and Mrs. Sam Parrett.

Club pro Tony Capuana said the annual women's golf championship tourney will be played Monday and Tuesday at the Washington Country Club. Mrs. Carl Mason is the defending club champion.

Fayette County feels effect of hefty boom in rubbish

By KIRK ARNOTT
Record-Herald Staff Writer

Fayette County, like the rest of the nation, has experienced shortages this summer, most notably of meat and gasoline. But while some materials and commodities have been scarce in these parts, the county has had a hefty boom in the supply of one thing — trash. Garbage. Refuse.

Call it what you will, there is a lot more of it lying around this summer than in the past. That's because up until a few months ago, a person could burn his trash, reducing it to clouds of smoke and little piles of ashes.

Now, open burning of trash is a no-no, by state law. Fifty-five gallon drums have fallen into disuse. Sales of plastic trash-can liners and metal and plastic garbage cans have increased.

This has meant a great increase in the amount of solid waste to be disposed of. Trash haulers have felt the burden, having to unload their trucks more often and using more time to gather more bundles, bags and cans of garbage.

This refuse increase has had a noticeable effect on the county's landfill operation. There's no real crisis or anything of that nature yet, by any means. But the flow of garbage into the landfill has accelerated, making proper maintenance of the landfill more of a problem.

The landfill began to feel the effects of the stiff no-burning regulations last fall, but not until this summer has the garbage flow increased so rapidly. Roughly one-third more trash is being buried on the landfill this summer than was last year. Many people are setting out two or three times as much garbage for collectors as they did before. And many other people, who burned all their refuse, are now taking it themselves to the landfill.

GOOD WILL OR JUNK? — The scene above is the area around the Goodwill deposit box on S. Fayette Street. Some of the items might be reusable, but many appear as junk items.

Pickets limited at phone offices

NEW PHILADELPHIA, Ohio (AP)—Striking communications workers have been ordered to limit pickets to three at General Telephone Co. offices in Tuscarawas County.

Tuscarawas County Common Pleas Court Judge Raymond Rice issued the temporary injunction Thursday. Rice set a hearing on a permanent injunction for Aug. 21.

The company sought the order after General representatives said pickets shoved supervisory personnel when they attempted to go to work earlier this week.

Defiance man killed

DEFIANCE, Ohio (AP)—Dilmer D. Cain, 29, of Defiance, was killed Thursday when his motorcycle collided head-on with a car on a rural Defiance County road.

Lloyd Cartwright Jr., who operates the landfill under a leasing arrangement with the county, says the volume of trash may eventually double, due to the no-burning law. "It creates quite a problem for us," said Cartwright. One fulltime employee and two part-time men are currently operating the landfill, but Cartwright said another full-timer will have to be hired soon.

THE INCREASED volume of garbage has made it necessary to dig more trenches and keep more cover dirt ready at the landfill. And covering one-third more trash than in past years is more time-consuming as well.

That is one reason why trash collectors in the county have agreed to ask their customers to place all garbage at curbside starting Sept. 1. This decreases greatly the time haulers spend loading their trucks, allowing them to cover their routes faster and so to deposit the refuse at the landfill earlier in the day.

The landfill, a 17-acre tract owned by Kenneth Walters, who leases it to the county, was opened three years ago. It had an expected "life span" of up to 10 years. Cartwright says it will probably be adequate only three or four more years now, though.

When this landfill has received all the trash it can hold, what then? Another landfill in the county is a possibility. But more likely is a five-county operation, using two large landfills and more hauling of refuse.

Cartwright says several people have indicated to him that they would like to have landfills on their property.

But Robert Mace, chairman of the Fayette County Board of Commissioners, says there aren't too many good locations left in the county for landfills. The terrain is not suitable in many cases, he adds.

THERE HAVE been several studies made, and various meetings have been held, exploring the possibility of a multi-county arrangement.

Dr. William Covert, county health commissioner, said Pike, Scioto, Pickaway, Ross and Fayette Counties have been involved in discussions about forming a large refuse district. Two large landfill sites have been considered, one in the northern part of the proposed district, the other in the southern part.

The multi-county arrangement be more efficient and economical, Covert said, but large tracts of land would be needed. An acre of landfill is usually figured to be adequate to handle the rubbish produced by 10,000 people in one year. The combined population of the five counties, as of the 1970 census, is 222,808, which would mean that a total of more than 100 acres would be needed to serve the proposed district even five years.

This arrangement, which is still in the planning stages, probably won't be needed for four or five years. The present landfill operations in the other counties appear to be sufficient for about five more years, Covert estimated.

Incineration, another possible alternative, has been all but ruled out as the cost is prohibitive. It would involve not only the incineration of waste itself, but also getting rid of the ashes, cleaning the water used to flush it, and controlling the vapors that would be created.

Recycling and reclamation are still in the future. To make it feasible, a large quantity of solid waste must be gathered in one place. Recycling won't become mandatory until the trash problem approaches crisis proportions, probably.

No matter what happens in the future, there is plenty of garbage in Fayette County and its effects are being felt already.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Post-Coronary Lease on Life

My husband has recovered from a heart attack. The X-rays and the cardiograms have been normal for almost two years.

Since his attack he is scared to death to do anything, even though the doctor has told him to get back to work, to play, and to exercise.

What more can we do to help him? He is only 46.

Mrs. E. Q., Ohio

Dear Mrs. Q.:

A heart attack is a severe physical and emotional blow to anyone, man or woman, at any age.

A young man, particularly, filled with his family responsibilities, is severely injured when a heart attack deprives him of his masculinity and his drive to function normally.

Your husband, as do many other people, often refers back to "the time I had my coronary." Reference to this time indicates that it is a milestone that will forever be remembered by the person whose life was momentarily threatened.

Many who recover from such an attack consider that they have been given a virtual new lease on life. And indeed they have!

You can tell it by the way so many people suddenly give up smoking cigarettes, start to lose weight, and readjust their hectic patterns of daily living.

These are the very same people who, prior to a heart attack, would hardly listen to the advice of their family and friends, and especially the advice of their doctor.

Many people walk on the brink of destruction, toying and gambling with their health until it finally collapses. Then, and only then, will they take stock and consider the valuable possession of health that they almost sacrificed.

In order to have your husband return to full serviceability, it may take the coordinated effort of your doctor, your family, and possibly even a psychologist.

It often is an arduous task, but you must not give up in despair or else the chances are great that he will, despite his complete physical recovery, remain a lifelong emotional cardiac invalid.

It is the opinion of heart specialists everywhere that well-planned exercise and activity is an actual contribution to the recovery of the heart.

Overindulgent rest may be the reverse of what is good in order to get that heart muscle back in tone again.

Doctors today are so aware of the need for emotional rehabilitation in heart cases that they begin a program while the patient is still in the hospital.

An optimistic attitude during convalescence is imperative if the patient's morale is to be sustained.

I have known men and women who have recovered from severe heart attacks who engage in a very humane avocation. They seek out others who are in the early stages of recovery, visit them, and show them the hope that lies in store for them.

Doctors are now able to study the exact level of physical tolerance of every recovered heart patient. In this way they can outline the perfect regime for each individual.

Your husband, with gentle and kind persuasion and understanding, can be induced to take this rightful place in society, without the fear that seems to dominate his life.

CHARRED REMAINS—In this charred corner of the childrens' room was the closet where fire broke out, leaving a family of six homeless. Six-year-old Michael Rhoades, was about to get dressed just before 8 o'clock this morning when he discovered the closet was filled with smoke.

Fire causes heavy loss at Mills Road residence

A fire that started in a clothes closet caused heavy damage to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Rhoades and family, Mills Rd., Friday morning.

The New Holland and Wayne Township fire departments, notified of the fire shortly before 8 a.m., fought the blaze about an hour before extinguishing it.

The house, located at the intersection of Mills and Robinson roads, was badly damaged by the flames. There was considerable loss to the contents of the home as well, including a new living room suite and new clothing for the Rhoades' four children, Michelle, 9, Michael, 6, Yvonne, 4, and Douglas, 2. The house and its contents were insured.

Mrs. Rhoades and the four children were in the house when the fire started, and all escaped without injury.

Gilligan wants Patrol use in strikes

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Gov. John Gilligan indicated Friday he favored legislation to change the Ohio law that prohibits use of the Highway Patrol in labor disputes.

"I don't believe in the law providing special sanctuary or any special privilege to any class or group or any individual," Gilligan said.

Organized labor, Gilligan's biggest backer, has fought movements to remove the restrictions over the years.

Rep. Charles E. Fry, R-75 Springfield, earlier this week blamed Gilligan's ties with labor in part for keeping his bill to eliminate the provision from getting House hearings.

Gilligan termed the charge ridiculous. He noted that when the Republican-controlled legislature rewrote the law two years ago it reinserted the provision.

The issue came up again recently after Gilligan closed the lodge and cabins at Burr Oak State Park because of the violence related to a strike by workers at the lodge, operated by Ohio Inns, Inc.

Gilligan said he took the action because local law enforcement officials advised him they did not have the personnel to handle the situation and he could not send in highway patrolmen.

Falcons seen as solution to airport bird problems

WASHINGTON (AP)—The falcon, mascot of the Air Force Academy, is being flight-tested as a predator capable of clearing airport runways of birds that smash into planes.

The principal researcher reviving the ancient art of falconry for the Air Force is The Rev. Edwin Mattingly, a 55-year-old Roman Catholic priest who has been training the birds since his college days in Indiana.

In "Operation Prairie Chicken," Mattingly has been using falcons for two years to clear the rare birds from traditional breeding grounds amid the grass next to a runway at Whiteman Air Force Base, Mo.

Air Force researchers say they are consulting bird-lovers and environmentalists at every step of the experiment. Mattingly said his falcons' claws were dulled and none of the prairie chickens, an endangered species, was killed at Whiteman. But he conceded many probably died because they were flushed from their breeding grounds.

James Rod, an official of the National Audubon Society, said his organization has no objection to use of falcons for clearing out birds that are in plentiful supply. But he promised an investigation of Mattingly's experiment with prairie chickens.

Mattingly said falcons, used for centuries for hunting small game, are a last-resort solution to a problem that annually costs the Air Force $13.5 million in damage to planes.

Three other bases—Ellington in Texas, Vance in Oklahoma and Hill in Utah—are being considered as sites for more falcon experimentation.

Mattingly, who works at the special-weapons section of Kirtland Air Force Base in Albuquerque, was awarded a $29,000 Pentagon research grant to conduct his experiment.

During two experiments in Missouri, Mattingly approached the breeding or

"booming" ground of the prairie chicken with a falcon perched on his arm. At a signal, the bird flew 300 feet into the air before swooping in pursuit of the chickens, which Mattingly flushed out by firing a shotgun or sending in a hunting dog.

The idea was to persuade the approximately 100 prairie chickens that the falcon had established a "territorial prerogative" over the breeding ground the smaller birds had been occupying long before the runway was built.

Once the chickens had retreated beyond the runway, Mattingly summoned the falcon back to his arm with a device designed to simulate the whistles of circling prey.

Construction worker dies as ditch caves in

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A construction worker has been killed in a cave-in at a worksite here.

Pork prices said rising too sharply

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Nixon administration is voicing concern over the sharply rising cost of pork, but has ruled out trying to halt the increase with a price freeze.

Kenneth Fedor of the Cost of Living Council said in an interview Thursday that some of the increase in pork prices may be attributed to the beef shortage. But that alone does not explain the hikes, he said.

"We are getting more supply, but the price continues to go up," he said, noting that the price of hogs has jumped from $37.31 per hundred pounds in the first week of June to $59.13.

President Nixon lifted the freeze on all food prices except beef on July 18. The beef ceiling will be removed on Sept. 12, and Fedor, director of the council's Office of Food Price Monitoring, said there is no prospect of restoring the freeze on pork prices.

He said the administration feels food prices in general have been advancing too sharply since the freeze ended. And the supermarket price of beef is expected to increase by 10 per cent once the ceiling on beef is lifted, he said.
